Joke calls are not the popular means they once were. Caller ID, a more sensitive society, and legal issues have made prank-calling comedy too difficult to do consistently well. However, there is a small, loyal fan base for prank calls and there are several apps to help with that. There are two types of prank calling apps as far as we can tell. First, apps that fake voices and cheat subscriber IDs, and the second are sources where you can listen to or view other people's prank calls. We have a healthy small amount of both here. Here are the best prank call apps for Android! We also recommend a good Dec app for some extra entertainment!

Price: Free/$12.99 per month/$119.99 per yearS streaming video comedy services of various shapes, and that usually includes content like prank-calling shows. You can browse Hulu, Netflix, or any other service you use. However, we found that Amazon Prime Video has Crank Yankers, one of the biggest prank call shows of the last 20 years or so. So we'll recommend that one first, but feel free to look for another prank call show. AndroidRock Voice ChangerPrice: Free (with ads)AndroidRock Voice Changer is a great app in its class. This allows you to change or modulate your voice in a variety of ways. The app boasts almost two dozen shared effects, and you can record them for future playback. You can also add effects to the audio you've recorded before. It's a little hard to use this in a prank phone call, but if you pre-record enough answers you can probably go through a couple of good ones. The app is free without in-app purchases, but it has ads. Automatic Call RecorderPrice: Free/$6.99 Automtmatic Call Recorder is what the name implies. This app records your phone calls for later playback. This is mostly useful for business and personal purposes. However, something like this can also help with prank callers. You can record each call and win back it later for fun. The app also backs up Google Drive and Dropbox. The pro version is a bit pricey, but adds some good customization features to the list. Fake Call PrankPrice: FreeFake Call Prank is a different kind of prank calling app. You schedule an app to place a fake call to you. It's great for a variety of uses, including messing around with friends or getting out of social engagements needing to make a phone call. You can set the caller's name, number and picture. In addition, you can use like the police or the pizza. You can even give it a custom ringtone and record a voice to win back when the call starts. It worked great in our testing and it's a free app with some ads. JokesPhonePrice: Free with the in-app purchasesJokesPhone is a prank calling app with a bunch of pre-recorded prank calls. You place the call and the app takes care of the prank for you. Each call is made from the side of the service, so it is not traceable to your your Device. In addition, every call is recorded for your entertainment. Like most, you pay for calls and the cost is a bit expensive. It probably doesn't help when the call goes to voicemail and you lose your call credit. It works well away from that. There is another app, Juasapp, that is a carbon copy of this just with different colors. You can use any of them. MyPhoneRobotPrice: Free with in-app purchaseMyPhoneRobot is one of the most popular prank call apps on Android. This is one of the prank call apps with pre-recorded messages. You pay for credits, place call, and the app does its thing. It also records the prank calls for your enjoyment later. There is nothing absurd or unique about this space. Credits can be expensive and recorded messages hit or miss. However, it works and it also hides your phone number. Podcast AddictPrice: Free/$3.99Podcast Junkie is one of the most popular podcast apps and it's a good place for prank call fans. There are a number of podcasts with a prank-calling theme, including the Prank Call Podcast, Madhouse Radio, The Snow Plow Show, and many others. In fact, podcasts where you will probably find the latest in prank call humor. Podcast Addict is a simple functional user interface with different download and playback options. If you don't like it, you can also try Pocket Caste, Doggcatcher, or Google Podcasts.Prank CallerPrice: Free with the in-app purchasesPrank Caller is another prank call service. It has pre-recorded calls that have different themes. You use credits to pay for a call, and then the app holds and records the call for you. It offers a few free calls a day and it's great for those who only want to do a random prank. The user interface is not something you don't see with most of these other apps, but we appreciate the design material on this. We also like how pre-recorded messages pause until someone responds. Spotify, Google Play Music, Apple Music, etc. Price: Free/$9.99 per month (usually) Spotify, Google Play Music, Apple Play Music, and other music streaming sites aren't really too scary for prank-calling fans. Most of these services have classics like Jerky Boys, even if their humor doesn't age well over time. If a prank calling album exists anywhere on the internet, it's probably at least one of many streaming services. All of them cost about the same and have almost the same choice. Voice Changer by BaviuxPrice: Free/$2.99Voice Changer by Baviux is another worthy voice change app. It boasts almost a dozen effects along with various other features. You can record voices, create images with sound with the ability to share on Facebook and WhatsApp, and you can even create voices from text, even though voices come across as robotic rather than human. It works great with apps like fake prank calling where you can record a write down and then set it up in a Fake Call Prank play when you take a fake call, thus prank calling yourself for the benefit of those around you. You can also use this app for free through Google Play Pass if you use it. YouTubePrice: Free /$12.99 per monthYouTube is a good option for the same reasons as Amazon Prime Video or Spotify. There is a metric ton of prank calling videos on YouTube. You can watch them for fun or get some ideas. You can find clips from famous names in the environment like Crank Yankers and Jerky Boys on YouTube. The service is free with ads or you can pay $12.99 per month to remove ads and turn on the background game. If we missed any big prank calling apps, tell us about it in the comments! You can also click here to check out our latest Android app and game lists! Also, check your local laws to make sure you are not doing anything illegal. We do not condone illegal activity here. Download a quality weather app for your Android tablet or smartphone and be prepared for any weather conditions sends your way. The default Android weather app works well, but a few great alternatives provide better service and a more engaging experience. These apps require the currently supported Android version and access to the Google Play Store. Carrot Weather is a full featured weather app that displays everything from temperature and humidity to UV levels and wind speeds. What really distinguishes Carrot Weather apart from its competitors is its dynamic animated background, which varies depending on location, and the whimsical phrases that inhabit its screens. Dark Sky has a reputation as one of the best android weather apps and it is well deserved. The app has detailed weather forecasts that can be broken down by a minute rather than an hour. It also has digital maps that display current and historical weather conditions around the world. Animated radar view of storm fronts, which are displayed in real time, will appeal to fans of the weather. Metro Weather is powered by its community, which owns more than 250,000 personal weather stations. This may seem unreliable, but the company has been around since 1995, is a source of weather forecasts for many companies, and its forecasts are really reliable; perhaps more than some of his rivals, depending on the location. The free Weather Underground app is full of features from basic weather data and widgets to information about flu outbreaks. There's also a National Weather Service Radio channel to listen to. Arcus Weather is a free Android weather app that creates forecasts on average, as predicted by other services, in order to produce the most accurate weather report. Most of the content in Arcus Weather is free, except for some features, such as adding more than two custom locations and removing ads that require in-app purchases around Few Android weather apps have put as much effort into design as today's weather. Today's weather has a clean, easy-to-navigate layout with numerous small touches such as animated weather icons. This Android weather app provides predictions based on randomly generated photos that match the weather and location selected from a library of more than 1,000 images. You can also take a picture of your surroundings, which you can use when sharing your weather report via email or social media. Few weather apps offer this feature. Today, the weather has the opportunity to anchor several places and get information about the sunrise and sunset of times and lunar cycles. 1Weather is one of the most promising weather apps on Android. This app has professionally designed icons and graphics that make mundane weather data engaging. Its dynamic background varies depending on current weather conditions. In addition to the usual weather forecast information, 1Weather includes a video series called PrecisionCast that shows the latest weather reports and forecasts for the next 12 weeks. Few people display every app they use on the front home screen of their Android smartphone or tablet. Sometimes apps move to clean the home screen, while in other cases apps are hidden because of the item. Here are the simplest and most effective ways to find hidden apps on your Android tablet or phone. Tim Robbins / Mint Images RF Info below should apply no matter who made your Android phone: Samsung, Google, Huawei, Xiaomi, etc. Like most smartphones and tablets, Android devices are equipped with a home screen that extends horizontally beyond what you first see when turning the device. Other parts of the home screen are used to sort apps and widgets into groups and hide apps from prying eyes. To view all sections of the home screen on your Android device, swipe from right to left. There may be more than one extra screen, so keep the swipes to the left until the visible icons can move on. Another way to hide apps on Android is to put apps in a folder. The folders are visible on the home screen and look like a collection of four small app icons. Click on the folder to open it and view the apps. Browsing apps on the Android home screen is a good start, but it doesn't show every app installed on an Android device. To see the full list of installed apps, including storage apps, open the app drawer by clicking on the icon at the bottom of the middle of the screen, which After clicking on this icon, a complete list appears with installed applications sorted in alphabetical order. This should show you most of the apps on your Android device, but some of them can be hidden. To show these hidden apps, do the following. This method is not available on all Android devices by default. The launcher determines the parameters in the tray. If you don't these options, try another launcher like Nova Prime, which supports hiding applications. From the app box, tap three dots in the top right corner of the screen. Click Hide apps. A list of apps hidden from the app list. If this screen is empty or there is no Hide App option, no apps are hidden. A full list of apps can also be found in the Settings app. To open the Settings app, click Settings (the icon looks like a gear). In the settings, tap apps and notifications and then click View all apps. The list of apps also displays system files and apps that make the Android operating system work properly. To show them, click on the three dots in the top right corner and then click the Show system. Looking at the app icon and name may not be enough to tell what's going on on your Android phone or tablet. There are numerous apps in the Google Play app store that look like one kind of app, but are designed to hide images, videos and other data. One popular example is the Smart Hide Calculator app, which looks and works like a basic calculator app but is a file storage app. The user interface of the calculator is fully functional, but when the user hangs in his PIN, he unlocks and reveals his real purpose. To double-check the true identity of any Android app, do the following. Tap the app icon until a small menu appears. Click on the little I'm in a circle next to the pencil. There is a page that details the application from the size of the store to its permissions. Click on the details of the app. The app's product page in the Google Play app store is displayed. Here you can read the official information about the app, including reviews of other users. More and more companies are adding full app functionality to their websites, which means users no longer need to download and install an app to access it. Instagram is one example of a functional web application that can be used in a web browser such as Chrome, Edge or Firefox. Tinder is different. To check if a user has accessed a particular site, open web browser apps on their Android smartphone or tablet, and then check your browser history. Browser history can be deleted in most browsers though, so it's not a reliable way to find out which websites have been visited. Visited. best prank phone call app for android
