Both Leadership of the Civil War, as well as Blade, Dragon Bone, and Greybeard.
Sky Haven Templehigh Ross they are not tired of the war yet. Stay away from it. Do you know the ancient Norfolk words about war? Endless seasons... So it proved.
—Arngreir [src]
Season Unending is a quest that can be used in Elder Scrolls V: Skryim. Despite warnings about dragons, Jarl of Whiterun says he can't help trying to defeat it unless the Civil War is stopped. Only Greybeard is in a position to hold a peace council. Background [Edit]
Editorial Source: Whiterun's Giles doesn't help you catch dragons if the civil war is intense. If we can hold the Peace Council, we can persuade the Empire and the Stormcloak to agree to the armistice agreement to defeat Aldoin, a threat to both sides of the civil war. Goal [Editing Source]
Walk-through [Editing Source]
Dragonbone should talk to Faadernax, Arberg or Esbern. Anyone who has chosen will say that they should talk with Jarl of Whiterun to persuade them to use Dragonreach, which was originally designed to capture the dragon and attach it to the house. Whiterun's Jarl [editorial source]
Dragonbourne wants to enlist the help of Zaul Balgoff. However, Giles will say that he cannot try to catch the dragon while Whiterun is under threat of attack. He said that if a peace agreement could be reached between the Empire and Stormcloke, it would help to capture and capture the dragon. Jarl will suggest sit down with Greybeard because General Tullius and Woffle-Igne Stormclok are very respectful of them. If Dragonbone has already completed a Civil War quest and completed the Civil War in Skryim, or if at least one side has sought a quest line to control eight of the nine holds, this quest is automatically bypassed. Whether Whiterun is under The Balgloop or Vignar Gray-Gal, Giles agrees to catch Odabying without talking to Greybeard, and the main quest line will continue. Dragonbone will talk to Gryllard, who agrees to help negotiate a ceasefire. Armaire suggests an invitation for Dragonbourne to speak to General Tullius and General Woffrick Stormclok and meet Withebeard to discuss Skryim's future. If Dragonbourne hasn't chosen one side of the Civil War quest line yet, the first conversation with General Tullius and General Woffrick doesn't have the option to talk about peace. Instead, after mentioning Helgen, each dragon bon assumes he wants to join his side. Each person guides them to their assistants (Regate Rickce or Galmar) And in most cases they end the conversation. When you approach each person for the second time, you'll see an option to tell them about the greybeard and the conference. After speaking to both parties, return to Arvers and talk to him before the meeting begins. However, Delphine and Esbern will take a tough stance on the conference's position on behalf of Blades. Arnegeir initially refused, but is ultimately persuaded to join them. At the start of the Peace Treaty [Edited]
Peace Conference, Dragonbone offers a variety of options related to the aspects taken on the Civil War quest line. Negotiation 1: As soon as the negotiations began, Woffrick told Ellenwen, who is participating in the congress, that hair loss had nothing to do with Skryim's politics. Tullius or Woffrick will ask what Dragon Vaughn thinks: agree with Tullius and keep Ellenwen in the meeting. Agree with Wofflerick and eject Ellenwen from the meeting. The selection was calculated as 'score' on the side that Dragonbone agrees. If the disappointing side is not preferred in the next round, they may threaten to leave the negotiations based on Dragon Vaughn's position in the Civil War. They will never do it, but at least they will feel they are being treated unfairly. Negotiation 2: Marcart or Rifsen [editing source] the following items are to give up the main hold. If Dragonbone were on the side of Stormcloke, General Tullius would demand that Liften be handed over to the Empire. Otherwise (if you are either sided with the Empire or have not yet been chosen), Woffrick will demand that Marcart surrender to Stormcloks. The reaction of the opposing forces depends on the state of the Civil War: the factions that control Marcares or Ritsen ask Dragon Vaughn what they believe is a fair trade for the city. The answer is one of three choices: the exchange of major hold that the opposition has. The main hold is the wall one in his capital. For this quest, you can only trade rich and crack. Whiterun is implicitly excluded because it is neutral and is not part of any deal. The main goal of the truce is to agree to stop hostilities against this hold by the side that does not currently control the White Run. There is an exchange of minor hold of the opposition. This is a city where the capital has no walls. Examples: Zaalmachii, Polcraes, Winterhold or Pale. Selected from the Civil War quest line (not available if there are no selected faces yet). Councils go together no matter which choice they make. It would be unfortunate if the side that controls Marcart or Ritsen were negotiated for a minor hold. Negotiation 3/NA (via console command): If there is a console command [original edit] with little hold To fulfill the mission when Stormcloke or the Empire had only capital, the other side would reduce their demand to a minor hold. Here is the choice of surrendering a small hold to Dragon Empire or Storm Cloak. There is no difference other than the last speech. If a minor hold is actually abandoned, Tullius tells Dragonbone of his displeasure. He won't use that speech if it is maintained. Stormcloke will trade either way. Negotiation 4: Concession [Edit]
Edit source]
Now is the time to request additional concessions from less preferred factions (and therefore defeat the negotiations). For each request, Dragon Bone can choose whether or not to accept the concession. If Dragonbone continues to prefer one side, the other will eventually act for greater benefit and in any case will agree to the terms. Once the Conclusion [Edit edit source] treaty is agreed upon, the quest is complete. Arnguerière summarizes the terms of the contract, including the new Jarls appointed due to the exchange disputing. If Dragonbourne joins and the consensus is beneficial or neutral, their chief negotiator (Tullius or Wofflerick) will praise Dragonborne's efforts and reward them with leveled weapons. After the peace agreement between the two sides has been completed, the Civil War quest will be suspended until it is fully completed. If Dragonbourne has freed Falcrest from the quest line of The Liberation of Skryim, where the next target is to liberate the reach of Stormclouquet with Stormcloquet, the goal of unleashing reach can be completed after the season's end. If Dragonbone has a bounty on Windhelm or Solitude, you won't be able to complete the Liberation Quest. If Dragonbone decides to take sides with the Legion and trade the reach of The Rift, he will skip the convincing tribute to the Civil War quest. Journal [Editing Source]

Delphine: So, Arnegeir ? You know why we're not going to let us in or not? Arnegeir: I wasn't invited here. Don't welcome here. Delphine: We, like all of you, have the right to be in this path. Arnegeir: I know how you set her up. And now the wisdom of Paarthurmax is lost to us, when we need it most. Arnegeir: I know how you set him up. And now the wisdom of Paarthurmax is lost to us, when we need it most. Arnegeir: We know how you set her up. But she made a different choice. Paathenax is still safe from your evil. Arnegeu: We know how you set him up. But he had a different choice. Paathenax is still safe from your evil. Arnegeir: Were you? The hervey of blades truly does not know the boundaries. Delphine: She did what she had to do. The deadline has passed. My only regret is that I can't kill himself. Delphine: He did what he had to do. The deadline has passed. My only regret is that I can't kill himself. Delphine: Now, as you know, the memory of the blade is lost. Delphine: Now, as you know, the memory of the blade is lost. Delphine: If it's up to you, Dragonbourne will do nothing and sit on this mountain dreaming! Eston: Delphine, we're not here to practice old grudges. Problems at hand are urgent. Alduin must stop. If I didn't agree, I wouldn't have called this council. We know a lot about the situation and the threats that Alduin poses to all of us. If we want this council to succeed, we need it here. Arnegeu: Very well. Show: The Start of Council
Arngreir: You can start by taking your seat. We all wait for you, Dragon Bone. Please, take a seat so we can start. Now that everyone is here, take your seat so we can get started. I wish we all come here in the spirit of ... Woffrick Stormclok: No. You brought her to this negotiation and insulted us? Your senior Tarros Hunter? Regate Rickce: It didn't take long. Bigner Gray-Gal: Yes! Galmar Stone First: Listen, listen! Zaul Balgloop bigger: diplomacy as usual. Ellenwen: I have the right to do this negotiation. I must make sure that I do not agree with anything here that violates the terms of the White Gold Concorda. General Tullius: She is part of the Empire. I cannot direct the person who brings me to this council. Arnegeir: Please. If we have to negotiate the terms of the negotiations, we will go nowhere. Perhaps it will be a good time to get Dragonbone's opinion on this issue. Galmar Stone First: You are weak. The sooner you realize it, the sooner we can see your back. Woffrick Stormclok: Peace, Galmar. Show: Ellenwen leaves Ellenwen: Very well, Woffrick. Enjoy your minor wins. Talor will be treated as a certain government rule. We will not think of interfering with your civil war. Galmar Stone Fist: Hal Skryim will never give in to Talmor! Unlike friends here in the Empire. Regate Rickce: I'm lucky to respect The Greybeard Council, Galmar! General Tullius: Regate. We represent the emperor here. Regate Rickce: Sorry, Sir. It won't happen again. Show: Ellenwen keeps Galmar Stone First: We Walk, Then. Woffrick Stormclok: No. We're going to stay. We have respect for Dragonbone and Greybeard hosts. But she can't observe anymore. We will not negotiate with her, that's clear? Ellenwen: Woffrick, why is it so hostile? After all, it's not hair loss that burns the farm and kills the son. Regate Rickce: Should she be with us? Woffrick Stormclok: You know exactly... Lol this time it's not. Show: The Beginning of the Commission, The Power of The Empire, How Serious? Can We Proceed?
Dragonborn Tullius: A moment. Galmar Stone Fist: Here we go. General Tullius: I want to make it clear that the only reason I agree to attend the council is to deal with the threat of dragons. General Tullius: When the rebels lose the war so clearly, we don't have to negotiate. General Tullius: If Woffrick is not ready to sue for peace and turn himself into imperial justice, he has no authority to negotiate a permanent agreement. Woffrick Stormclok: Master Arnegeir, I'll keep him... General Tullius: We're here to arrange a temporary truce for Dragonbone to deal with dragons. Nothing more. General Tullius: You should be pleased enough to have the opportunity to lick your wounds at this point in the war. General Tullius: We even consider sitting to talk generously with these rebels. Woffrick Stormclok: Plenty of posture, Tullius. If you've been talking, let's start with it. General Tullius: It's okay. Let's overcome this. Show: The Start of the Committee, Stormclok Power Arbor: Now Settled, Can We Proceed? Woffrick Stormclaw: I have something to say first. Regate Rickce: Here we go. Woffrick Stormclok: The only reason I agreed to attend this council was to deal with the dragon threat. Woffrick Stormclok: We're not interested in negotiating with the empire. It's only a matter of time before you get kicked out of the Skryim. Woffrick Stormclok: If the Empire is not finally there, there's nothing to talk about. Abandon the unjust claim to rule the free people of Skryim. Regate Rickce: I knew he couldn't resist. Woffrick Stormclaw: We're here to prepare for a temporary truce for Dragonbone to deal with dragons. Nothing more. Woffrick Stormclok: You should be pleased enough to have the opportunity to lick your wounds at this point in the war. Woffrick Stormclok: I think even talking to the Empire is a generous gesture. General Tullius: Is it over? Did you come here to give a speech? Or can you do business? Woffrick Stormclok: Yes, let's overcome this. Show: Stormclok demand - Markars Arnaageir: Are we ready to go? General Tullius: Zaulfrick. This council is unprecedented. We are gathered here at the request of Dragon Vaughn. I ask all of you to respect the spirit of High Rogar and do your best to begin the process of lasting peace in Skryim. Who wants to open a deal? Woffrick Stormclaw: Yes, let's go down. We want control of Marquards. This is our price for agreeing to the armistice agreement. Elisf Fair: So why are you here, Woffrick? Do you dare to insult Greybeard using this committee to advance your own position? General Tullius: Giles Elisif, I'm going to take care of it. Elisif Fair: General, this is absurd! We can't take this demand seriously! I thought we were here to discuss the truce! General Tullius: Elisif! I said I would handle it. Woffrick, you can't seriously expect us to give up Markar at the negotiating table. You hope to get from Congress that you couldn't take on the battle, is it? Woffrick Stormclaw: We took it before. Anyway, we're asking what we'll be up to. Arnegeu: I'm sure Zalfich doesn't expect anything. Regate Rickce: Yes, that's totally out of character. Arnege: What does the Empire want in return? Elisif Fair: Wait a minute. In general, you just have no intention of handing it over to Marcas... Renegade! Zaul Balgloop Bigger: Is this how the Empire repays us for our loyalty? Vignar Gray-Gal: You have lost the ability to defeat the Empire, and you Dragonbone. But you will be willing to sacrifice thousands for your own selfish ambitions. General Tullius: Soon I'll be back under the axe in my head, and this time I'll have no dragon to save you. Wofflerick Stormclaw: As always, the empire's great wrongs are worth nothing! Show: Ritsen was given to Imperial
General Tullius: You heard him, Woffrick. General Tullius: I heard what she said, Woffrick. General Tullius: Markars was off the table. Your rabble is on the verge of defeat. We don't have to pay that price. General Tullius: We made a fair offer to you. Are you serious about these talks, or are you just talking a stance? Woffrick Stormclaw: I have better expectations for Dragonbone. I came here in good faith, despite the compassion of the empire you are known for. Woffrick Stormclok: It's not what Dragonbourne expected. You treat us with respect despite the compassion of a known empire. Woffrick Stormclaw: You did the best you could, brother. But I learned how this empire is the most difficult way to deal with it best at the point of sword. Woffrick Stormclaw: You did the best you could, brother. But I learned how this empire is the most difficult way to deal with it best at the point of sword. Woffrick Stormclaw: Think hard about your loyalty, brother. I expect better from you. But I learned how this empire is the most difficult way to deal with it best at the point of sword. Woffrick Stormclaw: I have better expectations for Dragonbone. I came here in good faith, and now I seem to be helping the empire in every way. Woffrick Stormclaw: I know how this works, Tullius. I learned that the value of the empire promised a difficult way. Never again. Woffrick Stormclaw: You're losing this war, and you know it. Woffrick Stormclok: If we thought we were going to hand over The Rifsen, we wouldn't be as fooled as the emperor when he took away our freedom from Talmor. Woffrick Stormclaw: Skyrim will never succumb to your false empire again! Let's go, Galmar. You should have listened to you in the first place. Show: Marcars remains general of the Tullius Empire: I heard the man, Woffrick. General Tullius: I heard what she said, Woffrick. General Tullius: We reclaim Lylia. Now we can see if there is anything behind your good words. Woffrick Stormclaw: I have better expectations for Dragonbone. I came here in good faith, despite the compassion of the empire you are known for. Woffrick Stormclok: You're yours. From what I expected, Dragonbone. You treat us with respect despite the compassion of a known empire. Woffrick Stormclaw: You did the best you could, brother. But I learned how this empire is the most difficult way to deal with it best at the point of sword. Woffrick Stormclaw: You did the best you could, Sister. You're not better at diplomacy than being on the battlefield. Show: Liften remains stormclaw
Woffrick Stormclaw: I heard the man, Tullius. Woffrick Stormclok: Lipten is off the table. The Empire has few toes left in the Skryim. We don't have to pay such a high price for this truce. Woffique Stormclaw: We made a fair offer to you. If you're really serious about this truce, you need to think again. General Tullius: Dragonbone was more expected. You have sworn to serve the emperor. Don't forget. General Tullius: I don't blame you, Dragonborn. You did your best to have a bad situation. General Tullius: You disappoint me, Dragonborn. not interested in politics. If this is done on both sides, Markars will be captured by Stormclaw, and The Riftn is taken by the Empire. At the conclusion of the armistice, Arngière will tell him to step down, and he will act as if the affected Jarls were willing to accept the terms, and will be expelled by Windlement or Solitude, depending on which side of the war they supported. This quest will be skipped if the Civil War quest has already been completed, regardless of who the Dragonbone is on. If you're the only city that hasn't taken windhelm or solitude yet, you can skip it. Bugs [Edit] Edit Source: This section contains bugs related to the end of the season. Before you add a bug to this list, reload the old save to see if the bug still occurs. If the bug still occurs, post the bug report with the appropriate system template 360/XB1, PS3/PS4, PC/MAC, NX, depending on the platform on which the bug occurred. Do not use descriptions and/or first-person anecdotes, although they should be explained when listing bugs and fixes: These discussions belong to the appropriate forum bulletin board. If Dragonbone has launched a quest to join Stormclaw or Empire to display pc 360 PS3, it's impossible to continue the quest because there's no dialog box when talking to faction leaders, so you can't talk about it. A peace treaty in Gracie. This can be solved by repeatedly pressing the activation button when talking to Galmar or Wofferik. They will continue to say that missionary work is ongoing. Once you've completed the Battle of White Run, you'll again have the option to talk to General Tullius and Wolfrick Stormclaw. You can also talk to them when you return the jagged crown. To talk with PC (modified) Wolfique, the console command SetStage MQ302 30 is already available after talking with regular Tullius. To talk to Fix General Tullius, the console command SetStage MQ302 20 is available after you've already talked to Wolfrick. Joining one of the 360 PS3 factions and speaking to the leader immediately later will be resolved. Only related to General Tullius: Wolfrick instructs Dragonbone to talk to Galmar. Alternatively, if Dragonbone is running an outstanding initiation quest, you should be able to talk with the appropriate leaders when you complete them. Once the jagged crown (for the Legion) has begun, Tullius will not be able to talk to Dragonbone and will instead join Regate Rickke. This can also happen with Wolfrick in the same quest. If you joinEd StormCloak. Sometimes at least one of the original guards on the exchanged hold will still be inside the main city, and the guards will attack the new occupants. Pc 360 PS3 negotiators stop to say and if Dragon Bone can not say, they must quit their seats or it is impossible to continue the creation of a treaty. After the PC (Fix) NPC sits at the table, the quest is completed using the setstage mq302 300. Talking to Esbern must continue the quest after that. 360 PS3 has the previous status of the season unplayed and can be reloaded to complete previous save quests. After Dragonbone is in place, the meeting may not start. If you sit down and wait 24 hours for the game, the meeting begins. If it is still not triggered, all guests should sit in real time after 5-10 minutes. The meeting may be triggered when you leave High Ross and return again. If your PC (edit) quest hasn't started yet, you can modify it by entering setstage mq302 60 into the console. If the console command above the PC (Fix) doesn't help, you can also disable Galmar or move closer to the seat via the console command (click him and then enter the movto player). 360 (modified) season endless and fallen quests are all selected, talk to Arngier on the other side of the table, then finally walk and sit down, wait for a while, then trigger the meeting. This bug on the PC can occur if the quest to take care of the quest spark is on the stage where Viarno is trying to recite a verse on Elif, both rendered This quest with Flame can't be further developed. So far the best way to load from the previous save (before speaking to Tullius and Wolfrick / before giving a verse of the king to Viarno) completed the first one without proceeding on the other. The ps3 accomplishments in Civil War quests/trophies will be played out because of endless seasons to miss. If you get one or both of the fortresses that your preferred faction needs. Dragonbourne won't unlock achievements/trophies because you won't receive credit. This can be resolved by ensuring that the opposing faction can acquire all of the fortresses, or by completing that part of the Civil War quest before the season begins. PC Esbern may not say. Then disabling what makes him possible will wake him up. You can do this by opening the console, clicking on him, and then entering deactivation and activation. He may have to repeat every time he stops walking around his seat. Sometimes Whiterun Jarl doesn't require this quest, and when solitude is captured, all stormclaw or all imperial cities, dragonbones can be captured, even if the war is not over yet. The 360 PS3 Regate Rickke attacks Dragonbone for a number of crimes, including stealing horses from imperial camps. This can be solved by attacking her away from the negotiating room until she kneels (because she is marked as mandatory, she cannot be killed), and then sprints into the room to quickly begin negotiations. The trick is not to allow others to see legate Rikke attack. If the Forged Conspiracy is not completed, markars surrender to Stormclaw will automatically be marked complete. However, the next quest, No One Escapes Cidhna Mine, will not appear on the quest screen. Sometimes the season's unfinished season is not gracefully completed, which can result in quest stages to prevent Civil War Quest (ID CW) from participating properly. For example, the conference's characters can walk endlessly up and down the stairs just outside high logar without responding to Dragonbone and participating in quest conversations or events. If you use the console to kill or force you back home, they simply return to the stairs and continue endless loops (even walking across every step of the skyrim). This can be resolved by making sure all finishing quest stages are completed correctly, especially with 300 steps. The PC checks the status with Player sqs MQ302 and activates the stage with set stage MQ302. As soon as the proper steps begin, all remaining characters will begin a long walk back to their hometown and immediately interact with Dragonbone again. Season Endless triggers Stage 255 (CW) of the entire Civil War quest. <lt;stage>It is designed to prevent war during peace conferences. Once activated, this stage can be triggered by selecting the main dialogue option by forcibly withholding all Civil War battle quests (excluding white-run battles). CW's Stage 256 should be triggered automatically when the hold is lifted to reactivate the war and the season end. However, if the quest is not gracefully completed, the Civil War may be permanently withheld. Pc (edit) you can check this option through sqs CW and set stage fixed via CW 256. In the case of PC, quest jagged crowns (about Stormcloke), Dragonborn earlier delivered A Greybeard's message instead of handing over the jagged crown to Wolfrick, gmar can make it impossible for Him to continue without appearing in the meeting. PC (Modified) This command can be modified to 0001B133, after which it can be used by the Mobile Player.
