? I'm running into a bit of trouble getting Arcgis Pro up and running. I don't understand why I'm having so much trouble. I've downloaded 10.8 from the Arcgis site, installed it into a fresh W7/64 bit environment. I've tried the Arcgis installer, ArcGIS.com viewer, etc. The result is the same. The installer does not find an ArcGIS Pro Runtime, so I googled the runtime. I found these files: C:\Program Files (x86)\ArcGIS\Pro\runtime C:\ProgramData\ArcGIS\Pro\runtime I copied them to the exact same locations. Then I tried to open the viewer, and got the following error: I also tried the same thing with the ArcGIS for Desktop Runtime, and it gave the same error. I am able to run the app via ArcCatalog though. Any ideas? A: I got the same error using ArcGIS Pro 10.8. I solved it by changing the app.config's application setting's value. ♦s hurt all their ego." " But if this woman, does all that, " " you know, acting like you want her, it is human nature to think she's hot, isn't it?" " Yeah." "So the way we see it, " " is we've been bamboozled." " We don't feel the woman is hot, but she has to go home with this guy." " Exactly." "Yeah, so we think about our egos and think about her..." " Yeah." "... and she gets hurt." " Yeah." "And we feel bad."

"So the fun part is, we still like this guy." "All right." "He's too big to be lying to us, and we know he's never done this before." "Yeah." "He's just... he's still that guy who, you know, keeps his cool in a situation like this." "Yeah." "But he, you know, he's too big to be lying to us." "Yeah." "And so we go." "Yeah." "Right?" "We get on the escalator." "Yeah." "This is the scene." "And we find that the hot woman is on the second level, and she has a friend." "And so the friend says," ""Okay, I'm gonna do it
