Rebecca Mecomber High-Resolution Apple, patented Retina display technology, images on iPhone pop with bright colors and sharp resolution. Choose from choosing the default iPhone wallpaper or create your own bright lock or home screen with an iPhone camera or screenshot capabilities. Browse the wallpaper by default in the Settings app. The iPhone stores other images in different albums depending on your usage and the purpose they serve. The default wallpaper images that are installed with each iPhone are in the Wallpapers album. Get access to these images by clicking the Brightness Settings button and wallpaper wallpaper wallpapers. Other albums that contain different images include Camera Roll, My Photos and - when activated - your Photostream. If you've added other albums, they also appear here. The Camera Roll album contains photos and videos taken on the iPhone, stored images from emails and texts, and screenshots of images. My Photos albums are images synchronized with iTunes and computer. Photo Stream contains images you've shared on iCloud and syncs with other devices such as your iPad or computer. Access these photo albums by clicking on the Photos app. Set as wallpaper by clicking on the album tab, image, small settings icon and use as wallpaper. In addition, you can install any image as wallpaper by clicking on the Settings app and selecting Brightness and Wallpaper. Click the wallpaper graphic that shows the lock and home screens and then choose any photo from any album. Click on the photo and select Set and Choose from Set Lock Screen, Set Home Screen or Set Both. If you've included Photo Stream through Apple's iCloud service, your last 1,000 images are automatically synced and stored online. Get access to available images by entering iCloud.com in a web browser. Enter your Apple ID id and click the Photo Stream button. To enable Photo Stream, click the Settings app, iCloud and Photo Stream. Slide the switch to On, and the iPhone will upload photos and screenshots that you take to iCloud. Photo Stream automatically syncs all images and uploads them to all other devices connected to iCloud. If you edit or delete an image in Photo Stream, this change affects the image on all your devices. When you connect your iPhone to your computer, Windows sees the device as a portable external drive and displays the available media. To view images of wallpaper, connect your iPhone to your computer and click the Computer button from the Start menu. Double-click your iPhone under your portable device. Click on different folders to view the camera roll and albums on your phone. iPhone does not allow you to view or delete images of wallpaper by default in the Wallpaper album, as these files are included in iOS. When you back up your iPhone from iTunes, the device saves your wallpaper and images in backup files. Depending on your settings, these images are stored either on your computer via iTunes or iCloud using Wi-Fi synchronization. File backups are compressed and, in some cases, encrypted, so while your wallpaper images are stored, they are not available as separate, readable image files. This information refers to Apple iOS 6.0.1 software for the iPhone 5. Information and instructions can vary depending on the device and operating system. Read moreTape your class Schedule your student ID card for Easy ReferencePhoto by Carl Baron.Mikepatt77 lets us know a good way to keep your schedule always at hand as you head back to school: If you have a swappable card (i.e. a school or workplace ID) that you use to constantly get anywhere or if you just constantly use your wallet, then write your schedule on a mini-note and put your chart on a mini-note and put it in your wallet. So whenever you go and swipe somewhere you'll have to look at your schedule too. Use photos like iOS wallpaper without covering them upJohannah shares a smart home screen layout that allows her to see the wallpaper of her iPhone: I love the iOS 4 wallpaper feature because I got to see a picture of my husband and I every time I turned on my phone. However, the icons kept cluttering everything up. Since I put everything in the folder anyway, I just fit the pattern to have some space along the top and the vual! Now you can see your wallpaper and access the apps at the top of the screen. It's certainly not for everyone, but if you're a wallpaper fanatic like many of us, it's a good trick. Of course, if you have a ton of apps, it probably doesn't good idea, and folders make it much more tolerable. The format drives using Xbox 360 When Windows FailsPhoto Jamie McCall.Dark Reality shares another way to format that external hard drive: Want to format the HARD drive FAT32, but Windows won't let you? Connect it to the Xbox 360 and tune it. You can delete The folder, if you want, is just a 16GB virtual memory unit you can use. (Ignore the warning, it pops up on all hard drives, even those that are faster than their own.) Maybe there are simpler ways, but I just got a 500GB WD MyPassport, and I knew Windows wasn't going to let me, so I just had an Xbox to do it. With FAT32 my drive can now be read 360, my DVD player, and someone with a Mac or running Linux. I know Linux can read NTFS now, but I've heard that it's limited. And I rock PortableApps at work and it's creepy to go home and see that the work computer has ownership over the files on the drive. AFAICT FAT32 does not have this attribute. Finally, I know you can Google for a team prompt hack, but why am I going to do it when I can just make my 360 drive format? I may or may not use it as a virtual memory block (although, why not, I still have 484GB, and I have a ton of Rockband songs I can use it for carrying), but it's faster than a Google search hack. I usually use Ubuntu live CD if Windows isn't cooperating, but it's pretty quick and easy, especially if you don't have a live CD on hand. Use wasp and bee sprays to kill other insectsKamWrex shares another household multitasking: Is there a spider you want to kill but want to keep your distance (I believe most spiders sn down away if you get close enough to mash it up)? Most long shot sprays that are used to kill wasps or bees also work very well on spiders. Some may think that this one is not a brain, but many of us also just don't make a connection between bee spray and spiders, so it's good to know. The 2020 Dodge Challengers has five interior color schemes: one new and four seen on previous models. The colors of the interior are more sedate, but they should still satisfy Dodge fans. Black and caramel (new color is available in Alcantara suede)Black (return color is available in all skin, Alcantara suede and leather, or all fabrics)Black and ruby red (return colors available in Alcantara suede) Demonic red (return of color available in the skin) Sepia (return of color available in the skin) Sepia shade of medium brown with black accents. The demonic red color scheme also has a black finish. At the time of writing, the new black and caramel color scheme is only available with Challenger FT, R/T and R/T Scat Pack finishes. However, like exterior paints, Dodge can revise its interior colors and their availability at any time throughout the year. As an added bonus, Dodge also provided five different layout options for 2020.What Exterior Colors Does Dodge Remove for the 2020 Challenger? Dodge has offered six exterior paint colors in 2019 that are not available for 2020 models. These remote colors: B5 BlueDestroyer GrayMaximum Steel MetallicSublimePlum CrazyYellow Jacket In some cases Dodge has effectively replaced removed colors with similar shades. Frostbite is not too different from B5 Blue. There are also obvious similarities between remote Plum Crazy and the new Hellraisin. However, the Dodge solution to replace popular shades including Sublime and Destroyer Grey without providing alternatives is amazing. Fans of these colors may hope that Dodge will bring them back later in the model year. This is not an unprecedented move as the manufacturer did not initially offer the 2020 Charger in the B5 Blue. This became an option for Daytona's 50th anniversary edition of Hellcat, as TorqueNews explained. The color of your car says a lot about your personality, so consider it carefully. Perhaps you will choose a sporty red, nostalgic orange, or something completely different. No matter what shade you choose, you will turn your head behind the wheel of the Dodge Challenger.Resources: --text This content is created and supported by a third party, and on this page to help users provide their email addresses.
