Released as a single in September 1982 from kissing to Be Clever's platinum debut album, it was the band's first UK No 1 hit. In the United States, the single was released in November 1982 and also became a hit, reaching No. 2 within three weeks. History Do You Really Want to Hurt Me is the third single released in Europe by the Culture Club and debut in the United States and Canada. The song was picked up by BBC Radio 2 and became the British no 1 single for three weeks in October 1982. It entered the U.S. pop chart the week ended December 4, 1982, hit No.1 in Cash Box magazine, and spent three weeks on the Billboard Hot 100 chart in March and April 1983 (remains from No.1 to the massive success of Michael Jackson Billie Jean). The single reached sales of 900,000 copies in the United States and reached No. 1 in Canada. He was also number one in Australia. It was the first success of the Culture Club, following their first two releases, White Boy and I'm Afraid of Me in the UK charts at No 114 and No 100 respectively. According to Boy George, this was their last chance to get an album deal. The song quickly peaked in the UK charts after the band's first appearance on Top of the Pops, leading to George's androgynous style of clothing and sexual ambiguity, making headlines. The band were only asked to appear on Top of the Pops the night before the show, after Shaikin Stevens left. In a retrospective review, Allmusic journalist Jose F. Promis described Do You Really Want to Hurt Me as a simple masterpiece that resonates with the pain that has returned to the classic torch songs of yesteryear. In 2007, Boy George said the song was not just about Culture Club drummer Jon Moss, my boyfriend at the time. It's about all the guys I met at the time in my life. The B-side was version featuring Pappa Weasel in many countries and you know I'm not crazy on the US release. The 12th version of the album also included the track Love Is Cold (You Were Never No Good). The song's remixes were remixed by DJs Kvidver and Kinky Roland in 1998 for the Culture Club compilation called Greatest Moments and the single I Just Want to Be Loved. It was also remixed and presented at the Culture Club in 2002 with a box set along with the original demo. Re-released as a remix of reggaeton in France, it is back in the top 20 hit in the summer of 2005. The music video for the song, directed by Julian Temple, included vocalist Boy George in court in the courtroom, with memories of the Gargoyle Club, Soho in 1936 and Dolphin Square Health Club, Pimlico in 1957. The jurors were in black, making jazzy hand gestures. One of the band members, Mikey Craig, was not in the video and was replaced by his brother Greg. (quote necessary) Boy George wears a shirt with the Hebrew inscription Tarbut Agudda (תַּרְבּוּת אֲגֻדָּה), literally translating individual words culture and association in a grammatically incorrect order.
