Your recently viewed topics and featured recommendations this book discusses the basics of the psychological interview process and describes its methods and techniques. The text was written by a group of teachers who teach this topic in the Faculty of Psychology of UANL. Its content relates to psychology curriculum axes: psychoanalytic, behavioural, psychosocial, psychogenetic, methodological, and axis of techniques and skills. In addition to a career in psychology, it is also useful for related fields and even professions other than the social sciences and humanities. The book is a course for teaching and learning conversation as an interdisciplinary method of work. Part of a constructive approach and based on additional boxes, questions, examples, procedures, annexes and online resources. The authors aim to use it and turn it into a cross-cutting research technique with applications in different fields of learning, research and practice.
