Rich Warlock is a simultaneous electric guitar and bass. It has a variety of jagged shapes and two humbucker pickups. It was developed by the company's founder Bernie Rico in 1969; It was the only guitar I had ever developed on an editorial desk using straight edges and French curves. There were a lot of curves going into straight lines. At first I thought it was the ugliest guitar I've ever drafted. The design wasn't built until local guitarist Spencer Sercombe of Shark Island prompted Bernie to do so, but once it was, he soon found favor in the nascent heavy metal scene. The introduction of the Sorcerer in 1981 marked the beginning of the rise of BC Rich to cult status in heavy metal. [...] The merger of the far-from-different B.C. Rich designs and the emerging culture of hair metal structures of the late 70s and early 80s helped cement the brand's place in the market. Over the years since its inception, Warlock has become a de facto portrayal of heavy metal guitar, so much so that in 2015 he was chosen to represent Metal at the Exhibition Medieval to Metal: The Art and Evolution of the Guitar at the Lee Yauki Woodson Art Museum. There are many variations of the sorcerer. In order of price increase, They: Electric Guitars: B.C. Rich Bronze Series Electric Guitar B.C. mahogany body is built with the neck through the construction and neck of the mahogany to improve maintenance. It has a black fretboard that is super smooth with a comfortable 12 radius and 24 Jumbo frets. Duncan Design Blackout pickups produce the tones you're looking for while Floyd Rose Tremolo offers serious dive-bombing control. Black equipment is used in everything, including tuners. Body: Solid mahogany body, double sharpened neckline with a sleek black trim. Neck: Fully tied mahogany neck with black neck, with modern neck shape, neck-through design, length 24.6 scales, 12radius, 1.69 walnut width, 24 jumbo frets, diamond inlays, die cast black key settings, Pickups/Equipment: 2 Duncan Design humbucker pickups, 3-way switch, 2 volume pens, 1 master tone pens, diamond inlays, black die-cast settings keys, Floyd Rose 1000 tremolo system, Cosmetics: Super steek black trim hides most flaws in the guitar, but when you get close you will find normal wear, such as scratches on the top, various scratches on the body & amp; some light buckle rash on the back. The treble side horn at the very bottom of the guitar does have a chip in it. Overall this instrument is in pretty good shape & amp; it is ready to be played & amp; loved for years to come. Playability: This BC Rich has been set up with a new set of 10's and it plays great up & amp; down the fingerboard. The action is low & amp; the truss rod is fully functional. Modifications: n/a Weight: 8 lbs, 1 oz. Case: This guitar doesn't come with a case but we will ship it fully packed, padded and insured! The tool is perfectly made, in general, the new Beads Chinese/Korean, surprisingly (although cheaply here) will be surprised) high-quality. THE WARBEAST NJ that I listened to was very neat. They're all working like clockwork. The guitar feels big, the volume is quite wide and long 25 1/2, neck through the design in this B C Rich know the good, there is enough sustain, but without the ugly roar. Mahogany Corps. Form it without comments, if someone has entered the Church of St. Bernie Rico, it remains an ardent fanatic until the end of its mortal days..... The sound just demolishes the tower, the guitar is made rather for heavy music and performs its task to the fullest. No finesse 85 in necke and 81 bridge, the sound right want to carve hard touch. In general, A cool tool I think the rest of the series is also at this level. Named after the guitars from the old factory in Nagoya Japan, sound no worse than the old Japanese, I think not even from every Japanese old man so much meat will get That I allowed myself a lot of emotions, in general after one wiretapping in I loved it..... It's not obvious. A lot of hein goes; at the TOM Gibson, on the tremolo rich; Different menzuras; They are made of different wood, and this turns out physically guitars are different. And the author is somehow biased towards the Gibsons. I played on gibsons, but something did not cause me discomfort, plus with the bands everything was OK. However, he did not play on the bs riches. The tool is perfectly made, in general, the new Beads Chinese/Korean, surprisingly (although chevo already here will be surprised) high-quality. THE WARBEAST NJ that I listened to was very neat. They're all working like clockwork. The guitar feels big, the vulture is quite wide and long 25 1/2, neck through the design in this B C Rich know the good, there is enough sustain, but without the ugly roar: Mahogany Corps. Form it without comments, if someone has entered the Church of St. Bernie Rico, it remains an ardent fanatic until the end of its mortal days..... The sound just demolishes the tower, the guitar is made rafter for heavy music and performs its task to the fullest. No finesse 85 in necke and 81 bridge, the sound right way to carve hard touch. In general, A cool tool I think the rest of the series is also at this level. Named after the guitars from the old factory in Nagoya Japan, sound no worse than the old Japanese, I think not even every Japanese old man so much meat will get (That I allowed myself a lot of emotions, in general after one wiretapping in the magaz I really liked It is clear that the purchase of the tool for serious quite money, trumps a balanced position .. Here's another view in the theme here Korean B.C. Rich Wartribe Warlock (Kerry King Signature) compared with Gibson Explorer 84 Reissue (James Hetfield model) Frankly strange comparison. It's not obvious. A lot of hein goes: at the TOM Gibson, on the tremolo rich; Different menzuras; They are made of different wood, and this turns out physically guitars are different. And the author is somehow biased towards the Gibsons. I played on gibsons, but something did not cause me discomfort, plus with the bands everything was OK. However, he did not play on the bs riches. On the video more liked the explorer, I appreciate the sound. It's all on my look. Eh..
