The laburnum top extra questions and answers pdf

Short answers to questions - 2 tags She launches away, to the infinite. Explain this line. It means a golden fin whose arrival at the tree suddenly turned it into a noisy place. Feeding its young and making the tree active and full of life, the golden fin flies to the endlessly huge sky. Why is the image of the engine called by the poet? The poet creates images of the machine being launched when the golden fin arrives in the tree. Sudden noise and movement produced by young people is like running a machine. Fueling the engine is actually an act of feeding the young and giving them energy and life. Describe the top of the laburnum. The leaves of the top of the laburnum turn yellow due to autumn. Its seeds have fallen, and there is silence prevailing over the tree. There is no movement at all. What happened when the golden fin came to the Laburnum tree? The arrival of goldfinch led to a sudden change of tree. Young started Twitter and there was a lot of noise, excitement and movement on the tree. Why was the poem named The Laburnum Top? The poem was called The Laburnum Top because the top of the tree was described in detail by the poet, and the second part is a vivid description of the transformation that the tree is undergoing. The whole scenario revolves around a tree. Explain the first three lines of The Laburnum Top. Laburnum is a tree, the upper part of which is silent because of the lack of movement. There is no breeze and therefore there is no rustling of leaves. The time of day is daytime. The month is September and the season is autumn. The leaves of the tree began to disintegrate and turn yellow as they were about to fall. The seeds of the laburnum fruit have also fallen. How is the tree transformed during the bird's visit? Write a line that shows this transformation. The tree suddenly starts to tremble and move as if the machine behind it is running. This is due to the arrival of the golden fin in her nest to feed her young. The young begin their chatter. There is a tremor of wings. A line that shows the transformation of the machine is launched, out of the chatter, and the shivering wings, and the trill-all the tree trembles and thrills. What compares the movement of the golden fin? What is the basis for comparison? The goldfinch movement is compared to the movement of a lizard. The basis of the comparison are smooth, sharp and vigilant movements of the lizard. The same movements are observed when goldfinch arrives at the laburnum tree. What does the phrase mean by her forbidden face personality mask? This is an example of a poetic device - a rescheduled epithet. The laburnum tree has flowers that fall like bars and when the bird sits behind The shadow on her face looks like she is wearing a mask that has bars on it. The whole Christmas tree trembles and thrills. Explain the poetic device used by the poet. The poetic device used is alliteration. The tree trembles and thrills mean that the arrival of goldfinch on top of the laburnum is responsible for the movement and activity on the tree. The tree suddenly has grown, and on it shakes and exciting movement. The impersonation is also used as a poetic device in tree tremors. It's her family's engine, she strokes it full. Explain the value of these lines. The golden fin was named the engine of her family. Just as the engine starts the car, its arrival in the nest suddenly began a quiet car i.e. the young began to stagger and make noise. The expression She drowns itfull means that she fed the young, who now have the energy to become active and make noise. Explain the line: And the laburnum subsides to nothing. This is the last line of the poem, depicting a sudden silence that falls on a laburnum tree when the goldfinch flies away after feeding its young. He was on the tree for a while, and the tree suddenly became lively and noisy, but after his departure, the tree fell silent again. Then sleek as a lizard and alert and sharp, it goes into thickness. Explain these lines. The lizard is also very alert and his movements are jerky and sharp. In the same way, goldfinch enters the thickness of the branches of the tree and feeds it young. What did you notice about the beginning and end of the poem? At the beginning of the poem describes a quiet tree laburnum, which has no noise, movement or life. The ending is also similar to where the goldfinch flies away into the vast sky. But the middle part of the poem shows us a completely transformed tree with the noise of the young compared to the machine. Why did the golden fin enter the thickness of the laburnum tree? A quote of a line or word that supports your response. The golden fin entered the thickness of the laburnum tree because he had to reach his nest, where his young waited to feed her. The lines that support the answer machine are launched, from chitterings and shivering wings and trills. Link to context 1. Laburnum tree stands there, silent and still. A nest is built on it. The little mother of the bird goldfinch arrives to meet and feed her young. Sitting at one end of the branch, it gives a signal sound. The young learn their mother's voice and start tweeting together like some kind of engine. The bird, butt and fast, makes its way to the nest. When the purpose of her visit is to meet and feed the little ones is reached, she flies away. This is how the cycle of life and multiplication continues in nature. It's all instinctive. The mother bird makes her nest among the thick leaves of the tree. He raises her chicks until they are strong enough to fly and find their own food. A short and simple summary of the lesson in English- (The Laburnum Top) / Summary in simple words / Critical lesson assessment - (The Laburnum Top)Full summary of Laburnum tree top is silent and motionless. In september afternoon, golden sunlight spreads on it. All the seeds have already fallen to the ground. But the silence is broken with this arrival of a small singing mother of a goldfinch bird. She returned to meet and feed her young chicks. It makes a jerky chirping sound from the end of the branch. The mother's arrival creates a sudden commotion and a noise that has swept the silence spread throughout. The little young ones are out there in the nest. The little bird has a smooth and shiny body, like that of a lizard. She's very vigilant and fast. The nest is built reliably. The bird enters a thick bunch of leaves and branches. And immediately the tree comes to life, like a noisy car or engine. It's her little kids' engine. They too start Twitter with excitement. They flap their little wings and put up a tangled noise. It is the mother bird that creates all such noises on a high field. Then fed the chicks, she flies out of the nest into the branch. Her face carries stripes that are his identification marks, a kind of mask on her face. The purpose of her visit has been fulfilled. The bird again flies to an unknown place, far away. Silence, as usual, returns to the tree.
