DI DII DIII — FSU Soccer (@FSUSoccer) November 15, 2020 Only four minutes later Robbins would do it again, this time from a distance. It was all started by Gabby Carle who owned the ball on the right side of the field near the midfield line. Carle passed it down the side line to Nesbeth, who cut to the center of the field before passing it to clear Robbins about 25 meters from the net. Robbins would take a few steps before launching a rocket from 20 yards off the right post and at the back of the net, giving the state of Florida a 2-0 lead. She can't be stopped! North Carolina then pushed the ball around the field to Emily Fox, who would challenge the Florida state's defense, eventually leading to a shot in the corner of North Carolina. The corner of Tar Heels would go from the head of one of its players and just above the right corner. A few minutes later in the 21st minute, Florida State would receive a free kick of about 25 yards out that would lead to a deep shot from Malia Berkely that would end right on the North Carolina goalkeeper. A minute later, North Carolina would get its best look from the first half back in a corner. Brianna Pinto looked well and shot her on the left side of the net, but guess who Clara Robbins was there. She was able to put a foot in the ball and hit her. DO NOT MISS: Top 11 places to watch college football, according to fans A minute later, North Carolina would again have its best look of the first half in a corner shot. Brianna Pinto looked well and shot her on the left side of the net, but guess who Clara Robbins was there. She was able to put a foot in the ball and hit her. The state of Florida would have two more chances before half. In the 39th minute, the Seminoles would get another kick in the corner where Jaelin Howell would take his head, but was diverted by North Carolina's defense. In the 44th minute, the state of Florida nearly did so 3-0 at a junction in Ran Iwai. His cross rolled through Jody Brown and Lauren Flynn coming out of the right post before being cleared by Tar Heels' defense. The Seminoles quickly in the second half to extend its advantage to 3-0. The state of Florida scored only one minute and 12 seconds in the middle on a goal by Leilanni Nesbeth, assisted by Robbins. Nesbeth passed it on to Robbins, who with a one-touch pass returned it to Nesbeth. Leilanni pressed the ball between the North Carolina goalkeeper and the last right side to get his fifth goal of the season.
