Followers of the Notes Homepage & Language Files A English A1 before the 2013 IB Essay Essay Example English Paper 1 is one of the brave experiences that everyone must endure. It's especially scary because you don't know what you'll write about your final exam and your score depends on it! The best preparation you can make is to be acutely aware of the exam structure and become familiar with the strategies for dealing with paper 1 in general. If you want to wrap your head fully around the IB English Paper 1 comments, this blog post is definitely for you. In 2014, Jackson earned the perfect 20/20 for his final paper 1 in this guide, he will share his secrets in IB English Paper 1 so you can beat it as well! You can also check LitLearn's IB English Paper 2 guide for 2-in-depth paper instructions. What is a topic that includes paper 1? What needs to be written about in the opinion, the correct method of analysis, the importance of thesis, the proper opinion structure, the structure of the paragraphs, the body guiding the question. (This post does not apply to your language and literature HL Paper 1 is quite strange, so it will be in a separate post). In the Paper 1 exam, you get two invisible mysteries, both of which are between 1 and 2 pages long. For English IB and SL literature: The text comes from many categories, including magazines, editors, speeches, scripts, interviews, instructional manuals, comic strips, you name it. Get ready for a surprise. See my comprehensive List of Lang Lit messages in my Quora answer. Now what do you have to do? Your job for the rest of the exam is to write a comment in just two texts. Dictionary is a fancy word for The word option Onomatopoeia is a fancy word for sounds like oink and bark. The comments are just fancy words for In ib English Paper 1 comments, you must choose one of two texts, namely poetry or prose extract, and 'comments' in the selected text in as much detail as possible. What do I need to write in the comments? Imagine that you would be asked to just talk about The text you just read recently on a school trip (like a sci-fi novel) what are you talking about? Immediately, double prime Should seem worth the feedback. Characters are often the backbone of the story. They should certainly comment. In addition, the story revolves around a central concept, also known as a theme, as if you comment on Harry Potter and you don't talk about anything about wizards, you're out of the middle of the book! These events can be called plot. Now you know that the peculiarities and plot are the key ingredients in the opinion of Paper 1 that give the highest score. When it comes to these aspects, you're giving a holistic 'comment' on the message, which is what we need. But this is only half the whole story. The list above of three things will be very enough if you just have a casual chat with your friends. But this is not a casual chat. This is an English IB digging deep into english IB, your opinion must be deeper than simply describing the character, themes and plot, which is considered the 'texture meaning' of the text. Explain how these characters, themes and plot events were created through the use of certain literary techniques deliberately by the author. If you do so, you'll be on your way to a bigger and better analysis, ib wants you to dig deeper into the text and answer these two important questions: How do authors create these characters, themes and plots? Why do authors choose to create these themed characters and plots this way? These questions go to the heart and soul of the analysis. In this blog post, I want us to focus on Paper 1 as a whole, you can learn more about how to answer these important questions by reading our step-by-step guide to IB English analysis. Then you need to explain how and why these aspects were achieved by the writer. These two points are useful as a basis for understanding, but they won't help you get words on the page. What we need now is a practical guide to writing actual reviews: decisions about the actual thesis: making decisions about the right thesis, choosing the right points, choosing the right structure, the practical guide to writing a paper, 1 opinion, 1 opinion, English language 1, boiling opinion, 1, boiling down to 3 separate sections: Introduction: There is a thesis and outline of your point of view: there is a point of conclusion: summary of the sl only essay: the question of navigating the thesis or the subject statement is a single sentence in the opinion that indicates how the author achieves his overall objectives. This is the main argument you're trying to prove in Investigators can often judge the strength of your analytical skills from your story statement alone, so it is necessary to write well. Here's an example of a strong thesis: In poetry, Murray hyperbolises society's aversion toward emotions to criticize masculinity as a limited social norm. That inhibits the natural expression of emotions. We teach you how to create strong subject text in Bootcamp, our premium analysis for THE ENGLISH IB course, choosing the right opinion structure for IB English Paper 1. Finding this competition isn't always easy, but it's one of the most important things to get in your Paper 1 opinion. You can organize your essay by: Technical/ Theme Section 'Big 5' SPECSLIMS and may be a whole host of other abbreviations that English teachers like to invent. The C criterion for English paper IB 1 is enterprise, it's worth the whole 5/20 mark, so it's in your best interest to choose the most suitable structure for your opinion. In my opinion, there are only two types of structures that work well for most messages. I explained the most important thing of these commentary structures in my blog post about structural advice for Paper 1, writing body paragraphs: why and how, when you choose the best structure for your opinion and decide on a strong thesis, as your central argument, the rest of the essay must revolve around proving this argument. How can you prove this statement? You do it by looking at each point. These small dots support a smaller and more specific aspect of the overall thesis. The idea is that each paragraph of the body or point aims to prove a separate and smaller side of the bigger thesis. In fact, this translates into 2, 3 or 4 writing points, each of which fits into their own paragraph or several paragraphs (depending on the complexity of the point) on each point. You must include: Quotation is proof that supports your point. Use specific quotes from text and explain how and why the author uses to define his text/ She uses and answers suggestive questions as a guide question as God sends for SL students, so don't forget to take advantage of them because your friends in HL English don't get them at all. The best strategy is to instantly skim through navigation questions to get your head into the right themes and concepts so you can understand the central meaning of the text when you read it for the first time. As a general rule, answering suggestive questions should be made implicit. Pretending the question doesn't exist... It's just a notification! Planning ahead The most important part of IB English Paper 1 is not self-analysis (well, it is, but not true). The part that you need to get it right in the first place is the plan, before you start writing, you should plan your opinion in sufficient detail. I'm very persuasive as to why you should plan well in another blog post. But to cut the chase here: you'll lose track of time, thought and consciousness if you don't have a clear road map, all parts of your opinion before you start writing.
