Skins cast season 3 episode 6

The producers of This Is Us hinted a while back that we would be spending a lot of time with Jack in Vietnam this season, and tonight's episode certainly made good on that promise. Spotlighting Milo Ventimiglia and set entirely in the past, Vietnam finally begins to fill some gaps when it comes to Jack's military service, and his relationship with his brother Nicky. There was a lot to process, so here are six key things I might have missed. This content is imported from [\[embed-name\]](#). You may be able to find the same content in another format or you may be able to find more information on their website. NBC Kevin contacted a man named Mr. Robinson last week, asking for information about Jack. Tonight, we met young Don Robinson (Mo McRae), a soldier who served alongside Jack in Vietnam and shared a relationship with him alongside some good-natured rivalry. As soon as Don started talking about his post-Vietnam dreams of playing major league baseball, he had to know something horrible was coming and we're not sure he'll ever recover from the sight of Jack delivering Don his own severed foot.2. The wounded soldier Jack was celebrating in the season premiere wasn't Nicky. When Rebecca asks Jack about the war on his first date and he reduces how terrible it was by telling him he was just a mechanic, we saw a quick glimpse of a bloody Jack holding someone in his arms. Since the shot came just before mentioning Nicky, many viewers assumed we were seeing a glimpse of the brother's death scene. But this episode includes the full version of this moment, which sees Jack cradling Don after he loses his footing. That is, we have no idea how Nicky will die, or if Jack will be there with him when he does, or even if he's actually dead. If there's one thing this Is Us taught us, it's questioning everything!3. It was Don who taught Jack how to breathe. One of the most poignant recurring motifs throughout the show has been Jack teaching Randall how to breathe through his panic attacks, remember the gut scene when Randall did the same with William in his dying moments? Surprisingly, Jack did not learn this technique from his own father. Instead, he learned it from Don, who (despite having lost a limb) takes a moment to comfort Jack as he is about to be medically evacuated. You're scared, Pearson, he tells Jack, asking him if he ever gets tired of acting like he isn't. In response, Don lends a hand to the side of Jack's face and tells him to breathe, telling him sometimes we are so scared that we are going to die, we forget to do what keeps us alive. Jack clearly brought this with him, and years later taught it to the Son. That was so emotional! NBC 4. Jack was not drafted, but voluntarily enlisted to be with don't see this coming! Jack had a medical exemption that meant he avoided the draft (more on that in a second), but Nicky's numbers came up. Jack has always been incredibly protective of his younger brother - Nicky only half ironically refers to himself as Lois Lane in Jack's Superman - and so immediately comes up with a plan to get Nicky to Canada to avoid going to war. But en route, Nicky leaves her motel room in the middle of the night, leaving a note explaining that she will not run away from the draft. It's my turn to save the day, he writes. But Nicky still needs to save, at least as far as Jack is going. A letter arrives from Nicky stating that he is not doing well in Vietnam—he has been disciplined, and writes troubling phrases like I know I will not leave this place alive—and so Jack has to go get him. I just need to be where he is, even if I can't get to him, he tells his doctor. Even if I can't do anything for him, I just need to be there. He's my little brother. It's my job to take care of him. 5. Jack had a long history of heart problems before his sudden death. As we all know painfully well by now, it wasn't the house fire that directly killed Jack, but a heart attack caused by smoke inhalation. And as it turns out, there were warning signs. Jack has had tachycardia (an abnormally fast heart rate) since childhood, and was severe enough to exempt him from the draft. Jack downgrades the condition as harmless when he decides to enlist, but his doctor is clearly worried. 6. Jack's father wasn't always a monster. NBC This was a pleasant surprise, because Stanley Pearson has been a nice one-note villain in most of the show. On the one hand, this episode offered far more painful details of how abusive He was to his wife and children, to make it clear that his violence is a big part of why Jack is so protective of Nicky. There is also a brutal scene in which Marilyn's mother Jack and Nicky greeted the postman with a very visible contusion over his eyes. It wasn't always like that, Marilyn tells her children, after they both intervened to physically protect her from Stanley. And it's true: In a flashback to the day Nicky was born, Stanley is sweet and supportive, offering parenting advice to Jack in the waiting room. The appearance of Stanley's own father, a jar in his hand, hints at some of his demons - yet, one has to wonder what happened on earth over the next two decades to transform him into such a horrible man. I guess we'll have to wait to find out! This content is created and maintained by a third party, and imported into this page to help users provide their email addresses. The final of the comedy will feature all members of the original cast, including all children, Nolan Gould, Jesse Tyler Ferguson, and other stars shared emotional messages about the show's finale. Don't cry because it's over, smile because we still have one last season of Modern Family! The ABC sitcom is officially ending its 10-year run after season 11. Although there were whispers that the show was coming to an end, we all had hopes that it would stay forever. Fortunately, there are still many episodes we can expect in the coming months. Although we can barely stand the thought, here's everything we know about the latest season of Modern Family: When does 'Modern Family' come back? The eleventh installment of the family sitcom will premiere on Wednesday, September 25 at 9 p.m. ET. Which cast members will return? According to Deadline, all original actors are likely to return. The outlet claims that adult stars —Ed O'Neill, Julie Bowen, Ty Burrell, Jesse Tyler Ferguson, Eric Stonestreet and Sofia Vergara— signed new deals with the network in December. Details of the original cast of children - Sarah Hyland, Ariel Winter, Nolan Gould and Rico Rodriguez - have not been officially released, but The Hollywood Reporter notes that the renovation remained in its return. The show's co-creator, Steve Levitan, also shared a photo of the cast on the first day of filming, and included all the original stars (in addition to the new addition Aubrey-Anderson Emmons). Ten years ago we took the first cast photo outside our first #modernfamily reading table, highlighted the shot before and after. Today the end begins. This content is imported from Instagram. This makes it pretty clear that everything has been ironed out, and we will finally get to see Haley Dunphy as a mother and a woman. Is there a trailer? While there is no official trailer for the upcoming season of Modern Family, ABC released a compilation video that features highlights from the show's last decade, and is worth the watch. One YouTube commenter said what we're all thinking: This might be the best five minutes of my life. How many episodes will there be in season 11? As of now, it looks like we can expect between 18 and 22 episodes in the final season. Based on co-creator Christopher Lloyd, there seems to be still much more that writers have in mind for the Dunphy-Pritchett-Tucker clan. From our point of view creatively we have been excited to write this season change the lives of the characters - some in a meaningful way - and has made us think, 'Wow, there's a lot to explore the lives of these characters, he told Entertainment Weekly. Of course, not much has been shared about what will happen in this latest installment, especially considering co-creator Steve Levitan said: I thought season 10 was going to be it. (I'm glad I was wrong!) Although there was a shocking death, an unexpected pregnancy and an infinite amount of laughter in season 10, there seems to be much to look forward to in the fun family's childbirth moments. In its final season, there will be more milestone events than anyone who has been a fan of the series will not want to miss it, said ABC Entertainment President Karey Burke. Com is feeling the cast about the show's finale? If you think you're sad about the latest season of Modern Family, it's nothing compared to what the cast is going through. Several stars turned to social media to share emotional messages after the news broke. This content is imported from Instagram. Nolan, who plays Luke Dunphy, wrote: So happy that he get to spend another year with this cast and crew. And grateful for the career we've had. What a journey it has been. Thank you for taking him with us. This content is imported from Instagram. You may be able to find the same content in another format or you may be able to find more information on their website. On-screen husbands Eric and Jesse wrote their own tributes. Eric said: I am so grateful and grateful to have had this job for the last 10 years and have just done it for another year with this talented group of beauties. Jesse added: I am already preparing for a very emotional year with my beautiful and funny fake family. Same! This content is imported from Instagram. But not everything will be sad; the group also has plans to celebrate its last hurrah, too. I think we can go on a trip, we can go to Colombia, where Sofia is from... It's supposed to be very beautiful, said Ed Ellen DeGeneres. Can we come, too?
