The effect of continuous subcutaneous infusion of somatostatin on the endocrine pancreas in healthy dogs. The effect of somatostatin on the endocrine pancreas was studied in four healthy mongrel dogs by continuous subcutaneous infusion of somatostatin at a rate of 150 ng/kg/h. The subjects were pretreated with a single intramuscular injection of 300 mug of dexamethasone at 10 pm the day before the study and the beginning of the subcutaneous infusion. No side effects were observed. Plasma concentrations of immunoreactive insulin (IRI), immunoreactive glucagon (IRG), and plasma levels of glucose were determined at 15-min intervals for 8 hr. A significant decrease in IRI and IRG levels, and an increase in glucose levels were observed during infusion. The results indicate that a continuous subcutaneous infusion of somatostatin suppresses the secretion of endocrine pancreatic hormones. Q: How to create a smooth rounded corner that looks like this? I'm doing a small graphic for my website and I would like to know how to do the following background. The reason why I want to do it this way, is because it really looks good. I was wondering if someone knows how to do it and tell me how. A: It's fairly easy to create this in Photoshop or Illustrator, but there are a few factors to consider: You'll need a very sharp edge. You can't have a rounded corner where the edge is somewhere between a straight line and a curve. You'll need a shadow. To create the shadow, simply create a long gradient from black to a lighter gray and place it behind your design. Your gradient needs to be at least three stops long. Don't use any filters or you'll end up with a gradient that appears blurry.
