Its purpose will only be used to facilitate the learning process. There's a question, open it here: download and create an EPUB from your favorite books from the Safari Books Internet library. I am not responsible for the use of this program, it is only for personal and educational purposes. Before any use, please read O'Reilly's Terms of Service. Review: Requirements and Settings: First of all, it requires python3 and pip3 or pipenv to be installed. $git clone Cloning in 'safaribooks' ..$CD safaribooks/$pip3 set-r requirements.txt OR $pipenv install tubular shell Program depends only on two modules Python 3: lxml-4.1.1 queries No 2.20.0 Use: It's really easy to use, just select a book from the library and replace it in the following command: X-es with its ID, email:password with your own. $3 safaribooks.py --cred account_mail@mail.com:password01 XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX ID figures, which you'll find in the URL of the book description page: Like: Program Options: $python3 safaribooks.py --help use: safaribooks.py --cred git,EMAIL:PASS:git:login (--no-cookies) ---kindle---log---help Download and create your favorite books. positional arguments: Book ID, book id Хотите скачать. Вы можете найти его в URL (X-es): XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX дополнительные аргументы: --cred <EMAIL:PASS>учетные данные, используемые для выполнения<EMAIL:PASS> </BOOK> </BOOK> </EMAIL:PASS> </EMAIL:PASS> auth login on Safari Books Online. Es. ' --cred account_mail@mail.com:password01 ' --Login Prompt for credentials used to perform auth login on Safari Books Online. --No-cookies Prevent stored session data in 'cookies.json' file. --Kindle Add some CSS rules that block overflow on the table and pre-items. Use this option if you're going to export EPUB e-Readers like Amazon Kindle. --Save-the-journal Leave a 'info_XXXXXXXXXXXXX.log' file, even if there is no error. --Help Show is a message of relief. When you first use the program, you'll have to provide your Safari Books Online account credentials (look for a special symbol here). The next time you download a book before the session expires, you can omit your credentials because the program will store your session cookies in a file called cookies.json. For SSO, please use sso_cookies.py to create a cookies.json file from SSO files extracted by the browser session (please follow these steps). Note if you use a shared computer because anyone who has access to your files can steal your session. If you don't want to cache cookies, just use the --no-cookies option and provide all-time credentials through option--cred or more secure --login one: this will tell you credentials while running the script. You can set up a proxy by installing a variable environment in the system HTTPS_PROXY or using USE_PROXY directive into the script. Important: because the script only loads HTML pages and creates a raw EPUB, many CSS and XML/HTML directives are wrong for E-Reader. To ensure the best possible output quality, I suggest you always convert the scripted EPUB epUB into a standard-EPUB with caliber. You can also use the team-line version of the Caliber e-book-convert, for example: $ e-book-convert XXX/safaribooks/books/Test-Driven Development with Python 2nd Edition (9781491958698)/29781491958698.epub XXXX/safaribooks/books/Books/Test-Driven Development with Python 2nd Edition (9781491958698)/9781491958698_CLEAR.epub After execution, you can read 9781491958698_CLEAR.epub in each E-Reader and delete all other files. The program also offers the ability to provide the best compatibility for those who want to export EPUB e-Readers, like Amazon Kindle: --kindle, it blocks overflow on the table and preliminary elements (see example). In this case, I suggest you convert EPUB into ANW3 with calibr or MOBI, remember in this case to choose Ignore Fields in Conversion Options: Examples: $python3 safaribooks.py --cred my_email@gmail.com:MyPassword1! 9781491958698 - // // // // (.....
