Some clients may want to enlarge their eyelashes for special events or occasions, while others include an extension in their daily lives, especially women with fair fair and light eyelashes. Julianne Moore is a perfect example of a light-skinned, blonde celebrity who incorporates fake eyelashes into her makeup regimen. But if your client is performing a show or trying out a model look, you can play with more glamorous, fun extensions. While a standard cosmetology program will offer courses related to eyelash care and eyelash extension apps, you might as well consider brushing on art with advanced courses. Advanced courses are offered both online through instructional videos and in beauty schools across the country. Temporary eyelash extensions are the perfect solution for special events such as performance, prom, wedding, or even just date night. Eyelashes can be tuned to give a more natural look or dramatic flair, depending on whether your client is looking for a glamorous Katy Perry look or a subtle approach. Temporary eyelashes are made of synthetic material. You can also layer eyelashes on top of each other in order to create a fuller look. Your client can remove the eyelashes by themselves, soaking the glue in eye makeup removal, or they can come to you for easy removal. When removing fake eyelashes, some of the real eyelashes can move away, too. You can assure your client that this is normal and part of the process - their natural eyelashes will grow back. Temporary eyelashes will also take at least 24 hours in order for the glue to dry, so your client will need to avoid water during this time, including shower and sweat. Instead of attaching small areas of eyelashes while with temporary eyelashes, permanent eyelashes stick to one lash at a time to fasten them more securely. It usually takes about two hours to complete the full application. If they have to use mascara at all, it should only be applied to the tip of the extensions to avoid lumps. There are several different types of eyelash extensions that you could offer to customers including different materials and prices. The most common types are:. Mink eyelashes come in two varieties: authentic mink fur and synthetic mink fur. Any variety is extremely natural in appearance, unlike synthetic eyelashes. Authentic mink eyelashes are a more expensive variety and they also require more specialized care. Mink eyelashes are permed in order to keep their curl, but may have to curled up by hand to keep their shape as they lose their shape over time. Less expensive than mink lashes, but more expensive than synthetic eyelashes, silk eyelashes are the most affordable option for customers looking for permanent extensions. Synthetic eyelashes are made of acrylic material. Synthetic eyelashes work well for temporary applications, if your client wants eyelash extensions for a one-off event. Getting into the beauty industry without a licenseSynthetic eyelashes is also the heaviest type of eyelash extensions, so your client is a customer be able to feel the weight on your eyelids.
