Jordan Brand returns the classic Air Jordan 9 with the release of Air Jordan 9 OG 2016 Retro for the holidays. This Air Jordan 9 was released back in 1993, followed by a pair of retro releases in 2002 and 2010. Dressed in a classic white, black and real red color scheme. This retro release features a white leather top with black detailing and True Red contrasting accents. The shoes are finished with detailed stitching all over the top and completed with Nike air branding on insoles. Air Jordan 9 has never actually worn my Michael Jordan on court, due to his unexpected early first retirement from the NBA in 1993. Check out the detailed images below and take a look at this classic Air Jordan 9 OG colorway to return on Saturday, December 3, 2016 at some Jordan Brand retail stores. The retail price is set at $190 USD. RELATED: Air Jordan Release Date UPDATE: Kicking off busy month of December is the return of Air Jordan 9 OG. For one of the most casual returns of the original Air Jordan colorway this year, Air Jordan 9 is back again in its most iconic look of black, white and red this fall. The last comeback in 2010 just two years after he appeared in the 2008 Countdown Pack collection, the OG Chicago colorway took a little longer break this time, and is a welcome sight for all the biggest air Jordan 9 fans looking for a new pair. This time getting a remastered treat, the beloved colorway will feature relatively better skin quality and Nike air branding on the sock, although they will also come with a remastered price tag of $190, which seems a bit steep for a fairly simple and low-tech shoe design. Enjoy your best look yet on the OG Air Jordan 9 colorway, ans stay tuned to Sneaker News for a confirmed release date. Air Jordan 9 was launched in 1993-94 and was re-designed by Tinker Hatfield. It was the first model to be released when Michael Jordan retired from professional basketball to pursue a new career in baseball. They were not absent from the hardwoods, despite MJ gone. Several PE were made for players such as Kendall Gill, Penny Hardaway and Mitch Richmond, as well as B.J. Armstrong wearing a released with his jersey number on his back rather than the usual 23. The only signature sneakers are not permeated by Michael Jordan during his run with Chicago here's a look at the line line Air Jordan 9. If you are a fan of 9s, this should be seen as a must-have in your collection. Air Jordan 9 Retro OG White Black True Red is classified as a Retro OG release for the simple fact that it will come with the branding Nike Air. While you may not be able to see it once you put the shoe, real OG enthusiasts will appreciate the fact that it comes with Nike Air branded insoles. Coming in a white, black and red colorway, most of the shoe is made of leather to give the shoe its subtle aesthetic. Additional branding can be seen on the heel, language and single block. The release date is now December 3. The retail price is $190. Stay tuned to Kicks On Fire for updates. The Latest on the news update (11/15/16): Official images have been released by Nike. Update (11/10/16): Nike is now calling this colorway Space Jams correlated with the Air Jordan 11 space, which will also be returning this year. You can't go wrong with the classic Chicago/Bulls colorway. I don't plan on picking up a couple if I can get it well below retail.
