The film was released in Hong Kong on September 24, 2004. The film is a reboot of the Police History series and is the fifth film in the series. The new police story relies far more on drama and heavy action than its predecessors. Plot A group of 5 rebellious youths rob a bank with the intention of shooting police officers before making their escape. Inspector Chan Kwok-wing (Jackie Chan) and his squad are called to arrest the gang after their hideout is revealed. However, the place is rigged by traps, and the entire squad is destroyed. After losing several trials to the Rebels, Chan, the only survivor of the incident, took a year off from police to binge drink after losing the squad, including Rocky, chan's younger brother, Ho Yee (Charlie Yeung). Chan was discovered by a stranger (Nicholas Jie) who identifies as Frank Cheng, Chan's new partner. Frank tries to convince Chan to cancel his vacation and resume the case; Chan refuses, but recovers, detaining two young men who robbed him earlier while Chan was drunk. Chief Chiu Rongguang, initially believing that Chan's self-confidence was responsible for the catastrophic raid, challenges them to resolve the case before he does. Frank explains to Chan about his perseverance in the case that he is a relative of a deceased member of the squad. Frank and Chan take care and convince a former colleague of Sam Wong (Dave Wong), who hides in a bar, to reveal the key to the night of the first robbery, the watch of which he snatched from one of the robbers. Wong tells them that one of the gang members is a woman and that they love playing X-games. Chan and Frank tail Chiu and police as they search for the owner's watch at the upcoming X-Games event; Sam was arrested by police to assist with the investigation. At the event, which takes place on the roof of the skyscraper, Frank and Chan manage to find one of the gang members, the firefighter (Terence Yin), while Sam and the police interrupt the event and one female robber, Sue (Coco Chang). Before they laugh with them, the fire fatally wounded Sam, and they escaped. Sam confesses to Chan that he was blackmailed by a gang to help them ambush Chan's team. Chiu, hearing this, changes his heart. In the ensuing chase, Sue, Fire, Chan and Frank built the building on a rope. To distract Chan, the fire shoots at the bus driver, forcing Chan and Frank to save the bus. When Chan's old commander, Chief Tai, comes to him to complain about the collateral damage, he reveals that he has never been called Chan's partner. Frank admits that even though he wanted to be a cop, he failed the exam. Chan is convinced that Frank is sincere, and they are informed by Frank's friend, Officer Sa Sa (Charlene Choi), that all gang members are members of wealthy families, and the leader Joe (Daniel Wu) is actually the son of the police chief. The gang has also created online video games based on their raids. Sue and Fire return to a new gang hideaway, where Joe kills Sue, who was critically injured during the chase. His gang gets access to Chan's police file on his computer and planted a bomb on Ho Yi after luring her to the police station. Chan and Ho Yi cut the wires, without any effect, resulting in police believe it was a fake. But as they prepare to exit, a small wire attached to Ho Yi's back activates the secondary trigger, causing the bomb to explode. The explosion causes the pipes to land on Ho Yi, knocking her into a coma. When Frank's false identity is revealed, Chan and Frank are arrested. The gang visits them and mocks their next target. Frank and Chan were later unofficially released to apprehend the gang. Through online games, Chan, Frank and Sa Sa learn that the gang's next target is the Bank of Hong Kong. In order to avoid another botched raid, Chan has officers escort the public out of the building, and brings the parents of gang members to cause dissent in Joe's gang, prompting Joe to kill gang member Max (Hiro Gayama) for surrender. As a result of the altercation, Frank went blind, injuring him before retreating from shooting Joe. At the Lego show, Chan is catching up with him and has a rematch of the handles with tin tin (Andy On) and prevails before tin tin critically shot by friendly fire Joe. Chan follows Joe, the last man standing, to the roof, where Joe threatens to throw Frank, whom he captured, to death. Joe defies Chan's race to collect a semi-automatic pistol, a rematch of another earlier challenge that Chan wins this time. Several police officers arrive on the roof along with the indignant father Joe. Chan tries to persuade him to surrender; Joe admits defeat, but intentionally directs his empty gun at Chan, picking out the suicide cop with his Watch. Chan rushes to rescue Frank, and they both fall from the building, landing on the inflated pillow of the firefighter. In the hospital, Ho Yi recovered and prepares to leave before accepting Chan's marriage proposal. Frank was arrested for power. When Chan looks at the jacket left by Frank, he recalls meeting him as a child after Frank's poor father was killed by a truck while trying to steal food, and comforted an orphan boy, prompting Frank to become a police officer and repay Chan for his kindness.
