Production of the 2019-2020 season was originally planned as an extended edition of Terrace House with an extended edition of episodes that will lead to the Tokyo Summer Olympics 2020. In the first episode, the band talked about the ambitions of this special season, which will end around the same time as the world sporting event. Comedian Yoshimi Tokui, a regular panelist, resigned from the show in late 2019 after being accused of failing to report income of more than 100 million yen over three years for his one-man company. He apologized, saying he missed the payments because of his sloppiness and neglect. In April 2020, production of the show was halted due to the COVID-19 pandemic in Japan, a decision announced shortly after the postponement of the Summer Olympics to March 30, 2020. The show resumed showing episodes that were filmed before the production was suspended in May 2020 with Ryota Yamamoto hosting comment segments alone, before Reina Triendl joined him as an advisor. But the release of the new episodes was again suspended after the suicide of cast member Hana Kimura on May 23, 2020. Following Kimura's death, Fuji Television announced its decision to cancel the season on May 27, 2020, leaving the show's last two episodes (episodes 43 and 44) off the air. The death of Hana Kimura on May 23, 2020, actor Hana Kimura died of suicide while isolated in her own home during the COVID-19 pandemic. Before her death, Kimura shared a photo of herself and her cat on Instagram with the words: I love you, happy long life. Excuse me. She also tweeted a few hours before her death: Every day I get about 100 honest opinions and I can't deny that I'm hurting. Several notes were found in her apartment, one of which was addressed to her mother. Kimura's death led to a wide-ranging conversation about the cyberbullying she faced from viewers of Terrace House, a situation that escalated after the episode of The Case of the Suit. Which included a scene where she was involved in a fight with actor Kai Kobayashi over him accidentally washing her wrestling suit. Hana's mother, Kyoko Kimura, told the weekly magazine Sukan Bunshun that Khan was pressured by staff to fight Kobayashi. In July 2020, she filed a complaint with the Organization for the Advancement of Broadcasting Ethics and program, alleging that the producers edited the program to misrepresent her daughter as cruel. She said the program violated her daughter's personal rights and human rights and continued to shoot even after her daughter hyperventilating after an argument with Kobayashi. Kobayashi also claimed in Sekan Bunshun that officers asked him to touch her breasts. In August 2020, Fuji Television released an internal report outlining some of the circumstances surrounding Hana's experience on the show and her subsequent suicide. The producers noted in the report that Hana was self-harming after the fight with Kobayashi. They said staff met with her on a number of occasions when they suggested she stop using social media and seek professional help. Hana's mother disputed the report's findings, saying she doubted the impartiality of the investigation and that the television network could have foreseen cyber bullying because of their past experience with the popular show. On August 10, Netflix removed episodes 20 to 42 from its streaming platform in all international markets. Episode 20 showed a brief introduction to Kimura before she entered the house, while in all subsequent episodes she was one of the housemates. The reception story arc involving Toshiyuki Niino and Yume Yoshida saw Tom Hanaway of the Japan Times write a piece criticizing the show and his panel comments didn't make a big deal about consent. In Angel, Niino shows smearing lip balm on Yoshida's lips and then suddenly kissing her for the first time without asking permission. On another day in an episode of Another Terrace!!, Yoshida had to give up Niino's physical advances more than a dozen times. Hanaway has taught the studio's commentators the reaction to these moments, saying they initially sympathize with the woman, before the old-fashioned moods usually end: she asked for it. He noted that while some Western media and online viewers criticized them for a similar situation in the previous season, members of the group still did not face any backlash in Japan for their comments - or lack thereof - by consent. He wrote that the conversation about consent in Japan has not gone as far as it did in some places abroad, but those are places where exactly where the show is popular. In a YouTube video he made with Vivi where they discussed how the Terrace House program only shows short clips of their lives in the house and viewers then they know them as a result. Niino is briefly addressed to foreign viewers who accused him of sexual assault based only on seeing clips; It's a human decision, whether it's sexual assault or not. If a person says it is, then it is. But who can you judge? Inquiries: Hanaway, Tom (2019-05-16). Terrace House returns to Tokyo. Japan Times.
