Statement, Statement. 更新, if not more, we prefer to watch high definition video on the big screen no matter how enticing the smartphone is. This was made possible by an HDMI cable connected to your smartphone, where audio and video could be easily displayed and viewed on any compatible receiver, such as a TV or computer monitor. However, glitch endless cables and then there is also Wi-Fi coming into the picture. Fighting with traditional cable use. Miracast is an application designed specifically to provide seamless display of multimedia content between compatible devices. Miracast does not use an HDMI cable or an Internet connection. To begin with, Miracast was born when the Wi-Fi Alliance, which collectively enforces standards for the Wi-Fi brand, built it on a technology called Wi-Fi Direct. This technology does not even use a wireless router, and streaming is done in a continuous stream. The Miracast app is compatible with all Android Phones running with 4.2 or more newer versions. The basic principle of this Android Miracast App is that it allows the Android mobile device to detect and paired with other Miracast-compatible receivers such as TVs and set-top boxes. Now, Miracast Android will be mirrored by copyrighted content, if any, and will mirror all the contents of the mobile screen on the receiver as such, television. Everything will be wireless display along with standard video/audio streaming. Connecting the Android device to other devices has now become a necessary commitment due to the increased need for sharing, which has led to mirror usage. In order to enjoy the features of this mirrored app on Android devices, some of the best Miracast Apps are the only option. However, one thing to remember is that the Android Miracast App doesn't come with the same name as Miracast. Part 2: The best 6 Miracast Apps for Android in 2020 Fortunately, here we present 6 useful Miracast apps for Android users, so you can compare them and choose the con you prefer. 1. AirDroid: Remote Access and File This is one of the best Miracast Apps through which all Android devices such as phones or tablets can be allowed to control with Windows, Mac or the Internet. In addition, the whole procedure is wireless and free. It is a trusted app and is recommended by numerous media/websites such as PCWorld, BGR, LifeHacker, CNET, etc. The app is small, with a size of about 10MB and is very effective to use. Aside from mirroring the screen, AirDroid is also the best device manager for files and multimedia. The app allows for copying and synchronizing, recording a screenshot, and sending SMS and contact controls from your desktop. 2. Screen Stream Mirror Free Screen Stream Mirror Free does all its features in real time when it comes to mirroring and broadcasting. The screen can be transferred to anyone else via media player, web browser, Chromecast and UPnP/DLNA devices. You can live on YouTube Gaming, Facebook, etc. The screen can also be used to record files. 3. The AllCast AllCast app is one of the simplest and most highly compatible Miracast Android apps that will allow the user to send photos, music, videos other than the SLR screen. This app has a free version, but it's only a five-minute preview, and you need to switch to a premium to enjoy the full features. The Android screen device is shared mainly with television. This app can also throw Chromecast, Amazon FireTV, Apple TV, Xbox 360, Xbox One, and many others. It has the Wake Lock feature, which keeps Android on while streaming. 4. Miracast Widget and Shortcut Miracast widget and label is one of the best Miracast Apps, which serves as a perfect example of cross-platform solution. This Miracast app is easy to handle and very compatible. This app provides a shortcut to use the Miracast feature from supported apps. All it takes is one click for your Android to scan and paired with other Miracast compatible devices. A shortcut is available to directly send the device display to your TV or computer monitor. Screencasting is possible with numerous products such as Google Chromecast, Netgear Push2TV, etc. Changes in the old version of Android has a dialogue interface to disable the label directly. 5. Screen Mirror True to its name, Screen Monitoring is one of the best Miracast App to share its Android screen with smart TV/displays. This app will share not only the screen, but also video, music, photos, and basically any multimedia content with Miracast Android compatible devices. However, its functionality is the same as when using HDMI minus cable. Mirror image of the screen is possible with a variety of smart TVs and Laptops Samsung.
