There's no shortage of different ways of using essential oils to reap their laundry list of different benefits. But using a diffuser to disperse their scent across the air as a form of aromatherapy may just be one of the most powerful. Aromatherapy diffusers have the ability to interact with the brain and many body systems to affect mood and overall health, says Barbara Close, founder of Natural and Aromatherapist. Diffuse lavender can help lull you to sleep, diffuse citrus oils work as a mood-accelerator, and diffusion of eucalyptus and mint can even help combat cold symptoms, she adds. Bottom line: As long as you have a diffuser, you can find essential oil for any situation. (It is worth noting that not all diffusers are created equal and usually fall under one of two categories. Ultrasonic diffusers use water to disperse the oil, creating a penalty must, while non-bullish diffusers only use air to disperse oil without diluting it.) Ahead of the list of the best essential oil diffusers out there. This beautifully handcrafted diffuser, a favorite of Byrdie social media editor star Donaldson, perfectly marries the form and function. The exterior has a matte, ceramic finish and a simple shape, available in three different colors to match any type of decor; The interior boasts an easy-to-clean, BPA-free plastic water pool, as this one relies on ultrasonic technology. Also nice: It can fill up to 550 square feet of space with a scent, much larger than many other diffusers. Not only is it a distinction to be Amazon's bestselling aromatherapy diffuser, consistently pulling in five-star reviews, it also happens to be the most affordable pick on our list. However, despite the wallet-friendly price, it boasts a plethora of interesting features. Think of two different modes of clouding (continuous or intermittent), eight-color mood light, and automatic function turning off that kicks as soon as it runs out of water. It is available in four colors and has a compact size that is not too bulky. For a great price you will get not only this very stylish diffuser, but also the full composition of 10 different essential oils. The ultrasonic diffuser also has seven different light settings and two levels of intensity, with a total of 14 different therapeutic light combos. There are also four timer settings, so you can program it to your liking, and the oils included offer a great variety, perfect for ethereal newbies and veterans alike. Provided by ECO Modern Essentials Essential Oil Purists claim that non-bullying oils where no heat or water are involved-help ensure you achieve the most intense aromatherapy benefits. (For this, Because the smell is very concentrated, it's great for large areas.) This particular not only looks super sleek, but also incredibly easy to use and has two different intermittent fog settings. If you've ever wanted to control a diffuser of an app on your smartphone, know that you can with this fan-favorite smart device from Pura. Just plug it into the socket, connect to wifi, and insert fragrance vials to reap the benefits of custom graphics and adjustable smell intensity all from the palm of your hand. There's also the ability to swap between two different scents and an excellent LED night light feature. Perhaps what we love most is the wide range of fragrance options available, from brands like Nest fragrances, Apotheke, Capri Blue, Brooklyn Candle Co., and more. It may seem a little more to travel with a diffuser, but it's one of our favorite ways to deal with travel-induced stress. This itty-bitty version is compact enough to take on-the-go; It even fits perfectly into your car's central console and USB adapter, so you can plug it anywhere. However, it dissipates enough fog to fill up to 300 square feet and lasts up to six hours on an intermittent setting. There are, wait, 28 different styles of this diffuser available, everything from simple white options to cute animal shapes to those that would be adorable for a children's room. No matter which one you choose, they all boast the same ultra-quiet, ultra-quiet, ultra-atmospheric technology (which lasts three to six hours, depending on which fog setting you choose), and eight LED colors as well. Any ultrasonic diffuser will act as a moisturizer to a certain extent, given that it relaxes the steam mist into the air. However, this big boy is a legitimate moisturizer, with a five-liter water tank that lasts up to 40 hours at a time, a choice for those who live in a drier climate or use in winter. (This water chamber is also antibacterial, so you can be sure that fog is good for you.) However, it also doubles as an essential oil diffuser, so you can reap aromatherapy as well. Bonus points for adjustable night light. Aim all your senses with this unique diffuser. Not only does it provide aromatherapy fog (and comes with three mixtures of essential oil), it also provides seven kinds of ambient light, and even has a library of six different relaxing sounds. It is a choice to choose to use before bed and at night, not only because of these soothing sounds, but also because of the extra-long, 10-hour running time. Turn any standard shower into an all-spa-like experience. Just Your shower head for this; Don't worry, it's surprisingly easy to do, no power tools require). It comes with an innovative scent capsule that you pop into the back - they look kind of like single serving coffee pods that diffuse essential oils directly into the water. This may possibly way to reap the benefits of aromatherapy daily, not even think about it. You don't have to shell out a lot of money for a good essential oil diffuser, but if you're looking to treat yourself to an option that doubles as a work of art, this is it. Each one is made of a piece of maple wood, so there are no two exactly the same. There's a built-in light bulb that makes it a great option, like a desk lamp or placed on a bookcase for a little extra light, installed next to a non-bullying diffuser. Instead of emitting essential oil, it scatters the brand's fragrant Santal 26 oil, a warm and fascinating blend of amber, coconut, vanilla, cedar and musk. The small dial allows you to control the intensity of both light and smell. Getty Images As we spend more and more time at home, it's only natural that we want to find ways to make our space feel more comfortable and relaxing. Instead of blowing your budget (and your sanity!) on a redecorating overhaul, consider appealing another sense: smell. Some fragrances can affect your mood or even make you feel more productive. Candles can be wonderful, but they don't last forever, and you may end up searching Google as you remove the wax carpet. This is where essential oils and diffusers come in. You can even find some fantastic options at Walmart. These handy devices don't just make your home smell better. Some fragrances also promise immune-boosting properties and stress reduction opportunities (as more important now than ever!). Once you are comfortable with the diffuser, try mixing different scented oils to create your own flavor. Try lemon and geranium for a fresh spring flavor, or combine Christmas essential oils such as cinnamon, cloves and orange for a cozy winter blend. When you use essential oils regularly, it is important to know how to clean the diffuser. We promise it's painless!
