Article content continued “We are all very well aware of the difficulty that we have had in the past in being able to successfully draw a crowd to the Royal Alberta Exhibition Grounds,” said Travis. “This is a world-class facility, and we will be able to use that to be able to attract crowds here.” The remainder of the weekend will include 17 race-practice sessions, 16 race sessions and autograph sessions on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. “There will be a true diversity of race conditions, and it will provide us with a wide range of different opportunities to try and find what works best for our drivers,” said Travis. “We’re going to be having a lot of new experiences, and we want to experience those with the fans.” Tickets to the Formula 1 race weekend at the Exhibition Grounds are $55 for upper level grandstand seating, $40 for lower level grandstand seating and $35 for $40 and lower level seats in open-air. F1 tickets are on sale through Ticketmaster, including a limited number of tickets at $50 apiece through www.ticketmaster.ca/f1Alberta. "It's certainly an exciting weekend for the fans," said Travis. "But it's also a little bit of a battle for the teams to get everything worked out." Safety improvements are already underway, and Travis said he's confident safety is at the top of the agenda at all the circuits. "We are very, very comfortable that all the teams will have the same safety experience that we had at the races in Monte Carlo and Indianapolis," he said. "Everyone's got their back to the wall. It's about maximizing the safety, and that's what we've got to do here." .04 was derived from the specific expression pattern of the six genes in the PBMCs. (DOCX 520fdb1ae7
