Chris Bosh: I think Dwayne. Because he's going to say something, and you're going to say something, and you're going to say something, and you're going to say something. NBA Finals. Everyone saw it. Everyone saw it. Everyone did a great thing out of it and that's what bothered me the most. Dude, if you've never cried because of basketball like a grown man, you're lying. I don't care what you say, you're lying. I don't care what you say, you're lying a sign of a competitor? Chris Bosh: Yes. I hate losing. When I was a kid, I cried every time I lost a game, right up to 8th grade. I'm going ballistic. I'm going bal though it happened again when I was a junior. We lost in the state championship. It was the same situation, the camera in my face, and then I realized that it was over, I had a moment. But we won the next year, then other people cried. (laughs) I don't know what to do. G.H.: Of all the players, which team in the Western Conference would you like to cry for? Chris Bosh: I wouldn't want anyone to cry, I don't love anyone. It doesn't even matter - the opponent is always faceless. There's no one out there that I like-G: This sounds like a quote from 33 Strategies War.Chris Bosh: It probably is! It would be great to get the Mavs back, but I wouldn't do it for these reasons, because I think sometimes you can get caught up in it all, instead of enjoying the moment. GW: It's about equipment, isn't it? Chris Bosh: Yes.GQ: Favorite GOP candidate? Chris Bosh: You know what to do. You know what to be honest, politics is so weird. I think it's more difficult than religion. If you look at this, you have these numbers that are here and we all make mistakes, but they are there as they never made a mistake. Then they tear each other down. They these are the following ... I can't talk about it. I don't know anything about that. GZ: Are you voting? Chris Bosh: Yes, I'm voting. People have died for our right to vote, and I can't let that go. GZ: What do you think is the most common misconception in the world about you? Chris Bosh: What are the misconceptions about me? I just know the perception. Chris Bosh: I think it's all a soft thing or whatever. GZ: People seem to be very critical of you in this regard. Shaq called you RuPaul big men. Is that ever going to get to you? Chris Bosh: It was all the more weird. When we played this game where he made that comment, he had a great game. We were a smaller team and I said something about him camping in the alley. I said: What can you do? I think my exact words were: What can you do if it's there for three seconds, that's what I said. Then there's all these other things coming back, and I'm like, hell! So I don't even care, I just spoke my mind and it was true, what can you do if Shaq is there, and that's just with the big game?
