

MIGRATIO

Let you inspire wherever you decide

Ordinary offices lead to stagnant thinking, and don't encourage movement of employees. However, people are migratory creatures and movement stimulates our brain in several ways by increasing commitments among team members, inspiring divergent thinking and promoting problem solving.

This bicycle trailer is a unique mobile office, which you can drive wherever you would like to. If you find your desired place to stop, pull out the working chair and work while listening to the singing birds, flowing water, gentle wind or just pure silence. After that, take a short power nap in the trailer and refuel yourself with energy for the next working session. Order a pizza and enjoy its taste while looking at the trees moving in front of you. At the end of this session, pack the trailer and drive anywhere else to meet your friends or team members.

Workspaces need to be diverse not only functionally but also visually. Just imagine: you are sitting in an ordinary office space surrounded by walls and windows that you can only open or close but you cannot move. Everywhere else outside, on the green meadow, in the city park, by the flowing river, there are millions of elements of nature constantly moving, looking for livelihood, working, creating or just resting. Why shouldn't you join them and get inspired?