Warehouses are the purchased real estate featured in Grand Theft Auto Online added as part of further adventures in finance and felony upgrades. They are available for purchase as soon as a player registers as a CEO and buys Office. The contents of show review warehouses are used to securely store special cargo purchased by the player during the purchase missions ordered from the CEO through the executive terminal in his office. There are three different types of warehouses: small, medium and large. Small warehouses can store a total of 16 boxes, medium warehouses can store 42 boxes, and large warehouses can store 111 boxes. The maximum number of warehouses a player can purchase is five. The plan is to layout the Warehouse Office Hall. The location of the warehouse's interior depends on the size of the Warehouse purchased. Small warehouses have only one row of storage platforms, while the rest remain on the floor. There are three rows of platforms in medium-sized warehouses for storage. Large warehouses have four rows, but the platforms are much higher than those in small or medium warehouses. In order to start buying and selling contraband through a special cargo network, the player must buy the Office and then enter the Office and gain access to the executive terminal at a public session. After that, the player must buy the Warehouse. Once a player has a Warehouse, he can initiate Buy and Sell missions. Initiating the purchase of missions costs a certain amount of money depending on how many boxes the player wants to collect in one mission. It ranges from $2,000 for one box, $8,000 for two boxes, $18,000 for three boxes. For the vehicle Getting a vehicle is as simple as clicking on the green button to source a vehicle that will find the vehicle for the player to get. Once the player delivers the boxes to the warehouse, they must decide when to sell. The longer the warehouse sits with boxes in it, the more likely it is to be attacked by the NPC gang. However, the player makes more profit when they sell more boxes at one point in time. There is a short cool down on Buy Missions, so doing them for three boxes is recommended, but not the best option from a financial point of view, as it takes away from the profits from the sale price. The best way to facilitate is to do VIP work between them, particularly The Sightseer, where $24,000 is common and represents the lowest chance of dying in an empty lobby. This can increase your overall profit and contribute to the decline. Note that when buying an office already over $1,000,000, a player will also have to pay their executive assistant $300 per day for their services, and Office and Warehouse properties each add another $700 per day to real estate costs, totaling $1,000 in additional fees for each game day. Also, if you consider buying Office upgrades, note that secure only for aesthetic purposes, Gun Locker gives players the ability to create their own custom load of weapons, and placing add a bed, shower, and wardrobe to a private room. Buy Mission Home article: Special Cargo Main Article: Special Cargo/Steal Mission Buy Mission Missions The player does to get boxes. Buy missions have cooled down on them, so doing the mission that gets the player the most number of boxes, three, is recommended. Purchase missions and initiated at the player's office in the Securoserv terminal. It is important to note that the player can only pick up one box, meaning they cannot pick up two boxes at the same time. However, one person can deliver the box and then return to grab another one until all the boxes are gone. The purchase mission should take place during a public session, so it is recommended to find a small session or make sure that no one is going to try to destroy the boxes or kill the player. Note: Having more than one warehouse is one way to bypass the cooling timer when buying missions. Buying one drawer at a time is more cost effective than 3 drawers at a time, although 3 drawers is a more efficient time. 1 box - $2,000, 2 boxes - $8,000 ($4,000 per box), 3 boxes and $18,000 ($6,000 per box) Big WH takes $18,000 The U.S. ($6,000 per box) has three boxes of missions to fill at a cost of $666,000 and sells for $2220,000 (or $1,554,000 total profit) for a $42,000 profit per purchase mission. Big WH takes 111 single-box missions to fill $222,000 and sells for $2220,000 (or $1,998,000 total profit) for $18,000 profit per mission purchase. This means that you make approximately 28% more money total profit, but spend 3x more time to do it, albeit more You buy right away, usually the harder the search mission and the greater the risk that you take. However, with a profit of 18K per mission it would be possible to earn more money without risk at all, just doing VIP missions rather than. Sale Cargo Home article: Ad-Hawk Home article: Special Cargo/Sell Missions Once a player has received at least 1 item of special cargo, a player can sell it using a laptop connected to an Ad-Hawk website located on a desk at the entrance to the warehouse. The CEO will sell boxes using one of three different approaches - by air, using either a Cuban 800 or Titan (depending on the volume of stock sold), by sea, using tug boats, or by land, using one to three Brickades (again depending on the volume of stock sold). The more boxes sold, the more players it takes to help sell the cargo. Selling a full warehouse has the advantage of earning more money per box than selling otherwise not a full warehouse, but full warehouses comes with the risk of being raided by NPCs, leading to boxes being lost. Also in the lobby with more percentage bonus people added for risk over otherwise empty lobbies. Having more partners also gives an additional bonus profit compared to selling solo shares without partners. Small 16/16 is $240,000 for $15,000 per box. The average 42/42 is $735,000 for $17,500 per box. The big 111/111 is $2220,000 for $20,000 per box. A special item sells 5x of its costs, and unlike conventional products, special items will not increase the value as the item number increases. Partners currently do not receive a share of this profit, instead they earn money based on time similar to VIP missions. Every time employees help get boxes their pay rises are $500, starting at $5,000 and maxing out at $10,000 each interval. They also receive this amount after assisting in completing the delivery mission. Selling missions involving aircraft can have the player as a pilot using a silencer that will bypass the incoming missiles. Updates After the start of the mission Of Selling cargo from the warehouse, the player has the opportunity to update all the attributes of the vehicle to a certain extent, using the drawings in the warehouse. Next update: Delivery Truck (Brickade) Update Description Price Armor Update Additional protection for Brickade allows it to withstand significant damage. $230,000 Bulletproof Tires Replace Standard Tires on Brickade Bulletproof Tires.
