Living a rich life as the son of a senator is not all it is cracked to be. It can be said that Kaz lived a life in the shelter growing up. He hasn't learned much of the basic lessons he currently needs to survive in a place like the Colossus. It are people who will take advantage of his naivety. In fact, we saw that happen in the first series when Grevel gave him a holo-dart trick, causing him to lose the bet they had agreed to. Anyone else would have seen this trap come a mile away, but it fell for it and has been on the wrong side of Grevel as a result of this error ever since. Now, a group of people led by a sky runner named Jace Rucklin (Elijah Wood) are looking to befriend him. It turns out, however, that they have an ulterior motive. According to the official synopsis, pushes him to take a rare and dangerous hyperfuel hidden in Yeager's office. Take a glimpse of what the show has to offer with this extended peek sneak: Dangerous Hyperfuel? Looks like Kaz is going to get into even more trouble with Yeager, which is exactly what he need right now. Even though Yeager mentioned at the beginning of the series that he doesn't want anything to do with Kaz's mission, Kaz should still try to get on the right side of Yeager. Building a trust-based friendship with Yeager could help open up the rebellious ex-pilot and persuade him to take on a mentoring role. Instead, Kaz becomes more of a thorn on Yeager's side. Here's hoping that Kaz can compensate for the inevitable mistakes that will occur in this episode and that Yeager won't kick him out of the shop entirely. Without Yeager, he has no place to go or money to spend, so if Kaz knows what is good for him, he realizes that sooner rather than later. He's a little full of himself. Hype really likes to be the center of attention. She has a steady job as a lifeguard and she made some friends while living on the Colossus. Too bad this is only temporary, as she is technically a pirate spy intended to gather information and create opportunities for Kragan and the First Order. She appeared for the last time in the mid-season opening, Bibo, where she took Kaz on a recovery race. Synara asked her about the two pilots who rescued her, but Kaz quickly swept her away, not wanting to reveal the truth. She didn't dig for more information, but she suspects Kaz is at something. Meanwhile, she keeps her own secrets. Will he discover his secret operation in the next episode, The Diza Dilemma? According to the official synopsis of the episode: Synara settles into life on the platform, but her fellow pirates have other plans for it. It seems that Synara will get a rude reminder and a jolt back to reality because she is not there to explore other life possibilities. Kragan and the First Order are waiting for results, and so far it has not provided anything of importance. Bring a preview of the second half of the first season with this mid-season trailer: We must admit, the kidnapping of Captain Doza's daughter is a brilliant plan, especially as the First Order is desperate to establish a base of operations there. What better way to motivate Doza to make an alliance with them than to take the person who is most valuable to him. Torra, however, does not appear to be the type of damsel in distress. She's really a fighter, so it feels like Synara and the pirates are going to have a hard time taking her into captivity. The question we have in mind is that Synara will go all the way? She herself mentioned that life had not given her the right cards. Will she make her new start in favor of a pirate life? We think Synara is a better person than that, but we also know that it is too early to tell. One thing's for sure, Synara's going to stay a little longer. Whatever happens in this episode may be out of his hands. Having said that, she to a point where it will be forced to make a decision. I hope she will choose the life she made on the Colossus because the life of a pirate is not all she is cracked. Last week in Bibo, Kaz did some pretty amazing things, like taking the fireball and helping the ace pilots during the creature attack on the Colossus. He was told to clear the airspace, but he stayed around and proved useful in critical moments. More importantly, he has gotten used to his new home, and he is willing to do anything to defend it. Kaz is a willing and determined guy, always ready to task and ready to dive in when it is needed. Of course, it's a bit clumsy and doesn't fit quickly to unusual environments, but it tries and we like the way it puts effort. We also love Kaz's dedication, but we wonder if he bites more than he can chew in this next episode, Dangerous Business. According to the official synopsis: In exchange for coins, Kaz spirits acquisitions for Flix and Orka and comes into conflict with a shady foreign customer in league with the First Order. We adore Kaz, but we can't help but imagine him getting into some sort of problem and spoiling flix and Orka shop in the process. Although Kaz is not the type to go looking for trouble, trouble always seems to find him. We might be wrong, but there is something about Kaz looking after a store on his own that worries us. Take a glimpse of the second half of the first season with this mid-season trailer: Thinking about the description of the episode, Kaz must face a shady (and potentially rude) customer who is associated with the First Order. We find it interesting to see how the First Order continues to use non-human characters to do their dirty work. Take, for example, Kragan Gorr and his gang of pirates. Not every one of them is human. There was also the Neimoidian named Hallion Nark in The Triple Dark episode. Now Kaz comes across another non-human individual in the league with the First Order. If there is someone loyal to the First Order on the Colossus, should we focus our attention on non-human characters? Fans have been suspecting Neeeku as the spy of the First Order, but what if it's Flix, Orka, Aunt Z, or any of the other non-human characters we've encountered? As far as we know, they could be affiliated with the First Order in some way, possibility is definitely there. We are also curious to know what this customer is looking for in the Flix and Orka shop. Are they seeking trouble and damage to goods as a means of urging Captain Doza to bring a First Order presence to the Colossus? Or is there something of value in the shop that is important for the first first case may be, here's how you can watch this next episode of Star Wars Resistance:Date: Sunday, Jan. 20Start Time: 10 p.m. ETEpisode: Dangerous BusinessTV Channel: Disney ChannelLive Stream: Watch Live on Fubo TV.
