The first thing that you need to know about these HDTVs is that they are big. As in, huge. Seriously huge. A 65-inch flat panel TV is much larger than a standard TV you might not want a 65-inch giant to take up most of the living room space. But before you freak out about those giant screen sizes, realize that the HDTVs on the list below are meant to serve as a TV replacement for your living room. That's not to say you can't also have your own 65-inch flat panel HDTVs that make up the list below are meant for TV replacement, they're still great products in their own right. Despite what you might expect, flat panel HDTVs don't have to be big and heavy to be amazing. Those big, bulky TVs that don't fold up into a cabinet aren't the only choice for good-looking, slimline flat panel HDTVs available these days that you should be able to find one that matches your style. But what makes a flat panel HDTV so great? So, what makes a flat panel HDTV so great? Well, the fact that it can do a whole lot more than just watch TV – if you want a flat panel HDTV into. That doesn't matter, though, because there are plenty of flat panel HDTVs on the gowith flat panel HDTVs is also a bonus, and if you're serious about being connected to the rest of the world, then getting a flat panel HDTV with 3G or 4G wireless connectivity is a must. The good news is that 520fdb1ae7
