- Easy to handle, you will be able to check in your order quickly.
- Plastic trays are reusable and convenient to stack.

BARE ROOT PERENNIALS

#1 DIVISIONS

These are 1-year-old field grown plants. They are divided and sized for transplanting into 1-gallon containers. Most come packed 25 per bag and will be shipped dormant. Over half of our field-grown perennials come from the West Coast, where the long growing season produces large crowns and heavy root systems.

FIELD CLUMPS

These are huge, undivided clumps. They have very large crowns with multiple eyes and heavy roots. Pot in 2-gallon or larger containers. Field clumps are packed 25 per bag and will be shipped dormant. Large perennials create impulse sales and generate high profit margins.

1-2 EYE

These are specially graded 1-2 eye perennials. Use for 1- or 2-quart production for same season sales, or use for potting into gallons in June for fall or next spring sales. They come packed 100-250 per tray, depending upon variety, and will be shipped dormant.

WHEN YOU RECEIVE YOUR BARE ROOT SHIPMENT

- Open all boxes immediately upon arrival allowing plants to ventilate. Some plants may arrive frozen, as they are stored in our freezers at 28F. Allow them to thaw before handling and potting.
- Bare root perennials should be potted first. Store them at 35-40°F until time of potting.
- Check shipment against packing slip. Report any shortages and/or concerns to our office immediately.

PLUGS

JUMBO 3" PLUGS FOR 1- AND 2-GALLON PRODUCTION

Our jumbo 3" plugs are ideal for a quick turn around in your production schedule. Most varieties are vernalized for same year flowering and in just 5-7 weeks produce a full 1 gallon perennial. Many of our 3" plug varieties can also be used in 2 gallon containers, allow 8-10 weeks for finish time. 2 gallon containers are a great option for late season sales. Minimum order is 1 tray of 30, measurements are 4.5" tall x 3" wide, which is the equivalent of a 20ct elle plug.

WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN YOU RECEIVE YOUR GROWING COLORS ORDER

- In the early months of the year, our plants are shipped dormant. One of the advantages to this is you won't have to worry about cold temperatures that could damage tender foliage.
- Because our plants are shipped dormant, you may not see much foliage. Don't be alarmed – a few weeks in a warm greenhouse will get them going. The roots are full of vigor and are waiting for you to give them what they need: soil, warmer temperatures, fertilizer and water. Before you know it, you'll have buds, blooms and lots of happy customers.

WEST COAST GROWN

WEST COAST GROWN ASTILBE

Most of the Astilbe we offer are grown in Oregon where there is an extended season well into November. This longer growing period allows for bigger bare roots where as other growers could see an earlier dormancy period with a shorter Midwest season. Our domestic Astilbe are not subjected to a hot water treatment which affects flower production.

THE POTTING SHED

PLANT

Plant eyes 1/2" below soil surface and spread fibrous roots throughout soil to facilitate quicker growth. Gently pack soil to reduce air pockets and soil settling.

WATER

Water immediately and keep Astilbe moist at all times. As shoots and foliage appear, increase watering frequency. If pots dry out, the foliage will crinkle and turn brown.

GROW

Grow cool, 55-60°F, for best root growth. In early spring, and with adequate moisture, Astilbe can be grown in full sun. For late spring and early summer crops when light intensities are high and when temperatures exceed 65-70°F, it is best to grow Astilbe under 30% shade.

ASTILBE

ARENDSII Zones 3-8

The name is derived from the German, George Arends who was responsible for nearly all hybrid cultivars currently sold in North America. Generally taller varieties and early blooming, which makes them well-suited for larger container production.

CALLA LILY

CALLA LILIES (Zantedeschia) are one of the most unusual and interesting flowers. The name of this elegant plant comes from the Greek word for "beautiful." The Calla bloom, which is actually a modified leaf known as a spathe, sits at the top of the leafless stalk. Inside the spathe, you can see the tiny, true flowers on the narrow spadix or flower spike. Callas are very popular for weddings and floral arrangements as well as a potted patio plant or flowering holiday crop.

1 gallon production

Multiple bulbs planted in a large patio container

Callas are great for early, mid and late season color

BULBS

THEPOTTINGSHED

PRETREATED TUBERS

Tubers have been pre-treated with a GA dip to encourage greater and more uniform flowering.

POT SIZE

Plant 1 x 16/18 cm tuber per 6" pot (gallon).
Plant 3 x 16/18 cm tubers per 8" pot (2-gallon).

SOIL

Use a well-drained potting soil with a high air porosity and a pH 6-6.5. Add gypsum/lime to increase pH.

BULB POSITION

Callas are tubers with a flat top and rounded bottom. Eyes should be visible on the flat top side.

PLANTING DEPTH

Plant tubers 2" below the soil surface, flat side up. Callas root from the top of the tuber and need sufficient soil coverage over the tuber to prevent new roots from drying out.

WATER

Keep pots evenly moist to promote root growth, especially after potting.

TEMPERATURE

Grow Callas warm at 72-75°F days. Little growth occurs at temperatures below 64°F.

LIGHT

Grow under high light intensities - full sun. Too much shade or spacing too tight will result in weak stems and floppy plants.

FERTILIZER

Callas are light to medium feeders. Feed with a liquid fertilizer at 100-150 ppm Nitrogen as needed.

GROWTH REGULATORS

Most varieties are genetically short and do not require PGR's. If more height control is desired, Bonzi™ has proven to be the most effective.

DISEASES

Callas are susceptible to Erwinia, Phythium, Phytophthora, and Rhizoctonia. Use sanitary practices and apply regular fungicide applications to prevent diseases.

CANNA LILY

CANNA LILIES are excellent landscape and patio plants. They add height, texture, color and a tropical element to any perennial garden. Their big and bold foliage makes a serious statement and their flowers are equally as impressive. You can expect your Cannas to produce a big show with blooms lasting from summer through the first frost.

Canna Cannova™ Mixed Container

Canna Pretoria

THE POTTING SHED

WATER

Some varieties can grow as a water plant where the Canna sits in standing water or saturated soils. But if grown as a potted plant, water at least 1-2" per week.

SOIL

Canna lilies will grow in a wide variety of soils but prefer rich, moist, but well-drained soils that are high in organic matter. Keep the pH around 6.5.

PLANTING DEPTH

Place the rhizomes horizontally in the pot near the top and cover with 2-4" of soil. Canna prefer to be planted shallow.

TEMPERATURE

Grow warm with night time temperatures at 65-70°F. Bring them to market as soon as the first leaves begin to unfurl.

LIGHT

Grow in full sun where 6 or more hours of sunlight is available. For the extreme southern U.S., intense sunlight may fade flowers so plant in partial sun.

FERTILIZER

Canna Lilies are heavy feeders. Fertilize weekly throughout the summer with 200 ppm Nitrogen of 20-20-20. Without regular feedings, their foliage can look worn out.

CLEMATIS

CLEMATIS (Queen of the Vines)

are the most popular of all hardy vines. They are fast growing and produce an exceptional amount of blooms. Clematis come in a wide range of flower colors, sizes, shapes, heights and bloom times. Clematis are very long-lived and benefit from proper site selection where they can be left undisturbed for years. Most require a support structure, such as a fence or trellis, to which they can attach. Zones 3-7.

Clematis Sapphire Indigo™ pp17012 (see information on page 47)

1 & 2 gallon Metal and 1 gallon Plastic Trellis

Large 3.5" Euro Quart Pot

POTTING SHED

PLANT

Clematis prefer a neutral soil, pH 5.7- 6.4. Center in pot and plant crown 1-2" below the soil surface. Spread spiralling roots evenly throughout soil.

TRELLIS

Position trellis at time of planting to prevent root and stem damage later.

PINCH

Pinch sprouted clematis back to 2 sets of leaf pairs per stem. This will promote better branching and produce fuller containers. Inspect crop regularly and keep growing shoots trained to the trellis to prevent tangling and damage.

GROW

Grow in full sun at 55-60°F minimum night temperatures. After growth appears, fertilize with 200 ppm Nitrogen every 7-10 days.

WATER

Keep evenly moist. To prevent diseases, water early in the day and keep foliage dry.

SITE SELECTION AND PLANTING INFO

For best flowering, select a site that is well-drained with a minimum of 4 hours of sunlight per day. Clematis prefer their roots to be cool. If planted in full sun, surround clematis with perennials or smaller shrubs that provide shade to the crown area. Homeowners should plant their potted clematis so the crown is 2-4" below soil level. Keep moist and fertilize regularly.

DAHLIA

DAHLIAS make an excellent patio container or flowering potted plant. They bloom non-stop from summer to first frost, providing late-season color when most perennials are past their prime. Dahlias are also a favorite holiday container crop, especially for Mother's Day.

Mixed Dinner Plate Dahlias

POTTING SHED

SOIL

Use a well-drained potting soil with a pH 6.5-7.0.

PLANTING

Plant tubers so the crown is at or just below the soil surface. Eyes should be visible or will develop where the old stem and tubers meet. Be gentle. Some tubers are delicate and easily broken if handled too rough.

WATERING

Keep pots evenly moist but not too wet after potting. Too much moisture may lead to crown and root rots. Once growth begins, more frequent watering will be necessary.

TEMPERATURE

Grow Dahlias warm at 70-75°F days.

DICENTRA

DICENTRA (Bleeding Hearts)

Bleeding Hearts have always been a treasured perennial among gardeners for their famous heart-shaped, spring-time flowers. Now with so many varieties that seem to bloom all summer, we think this old-time favorite has something new to talk about. Our Heart Series has flowers that are showy, foliage that is frilly and they bloom non-stop! What more could you ask for in a perennial? Remember, this genus is a great option for all the gardeners who want colorful flowers in the shade.

Dicentra Valentine 4/+ roots for 1 or 2 gallon containers

Dicentra Goldheart in 3.5" pot

Dicentra Luxuriant growing fields

POTTING SHED

PLANT

Plant so the crown is centered in the pot and the eyes are 1" below the soil surface.

ROOT PRUNING

For spectabilis types with large fleshy roots, prune roots so plants easily fit in containers. Do not leave crowns or weyes exposed above the soil level. For fern-leaf types with more fibrous roots, gently spread out roots at the time of planting. Plant deep enough so crowns are not exposed.

GROW

Best to grow cool at 50-55°F minimum night temperatures to allow proper root growth prior to shoot development. Growing too warm will cause shoots to grow too fast, resulting in spindly growth and poor pot presentation. Grow in full sun for early spring crops. For late spring and early summer production, and as light intensities and temperatures rise, a 30% shade may be required.

WATER

Keep evenly moist. To prevent diseases, water early in the day and keep foliage dry.

DICENTRA

DICENTRA–FERN LEAF (Fern Leaf Bleeding Heart) Zones 3-9

Bleeding Hearts are a staple in the shade garden. The heart shaped flowers in spring are unlike any other and are available in many shades of red, pink, white and now, yellow. Easy and low maintenance, they compliment later blooming perennials like Astilbe or Ligularia very well.

ECHINACEA

have always been a mainstay in the sunny perennial garden. Their popularity has skyrocketed in recent years due to intensive breeding programs that have produced fantastic new colors and introduced double and semi-double forms. They tolerate a wide range of conditions, including heat and drought tolerance. Plant in full sun in average soil. Attractive cone heads add winter interest and are good for dried arrangements. Zones 4-9.

FEBRUARY Ship

MARCH Ship

APRIL Ship

Our seed Echinacea are shipped fully rooted and just coming out of dormancy, with longer and warmer days, more growth appears.

THEPOTTINGSHED

PLANTING

Just before planting, water the plug trays thoroughly. This will ensure quicker rooting into the surrounding new soil. When you're ready to plant, place the plugs into the center of your container and make sure the plant crown is level with the soil surface. If plugs are root bound, loosen the roots in the lower portion of the plug before planting.

WATER

Echinacea do not like to be overwatered. Keep the soil moist but not consistently wet after transplanting to facilitate root and shoot growth. Once they are established and actively growing, allow the soil to dry slightly between waterings

GROW

Grow in full sun at 55-60°F minimum night temperatures. After growth appears, fertilize with 200 ppm Nitrogen every 7-10 days. Too much fertilizer can lead to root and crown rots.

LIGHTING

Echinacea are long day perennials that will initiate flowering when the day lengths are around 13 hours. In some instances, it may be beneficial to provide a vegetative phase before providing conditions that promote flowering. If a bulking period is needed, provide long day lengths of 17-24 hours using day length extension lighting. Once the plants are well-branched and the containers are about half full, grow them under 14-hour day lengths to promote flowering.

PGRS

Most commercially available plant growth regulators are effective in controlling plant height. Consult label instructions.

INSECTS & DISEASES

Be on the lookout for aphids, leafhoppers, and whiteflies. Echinacea are also susceptible to aster yellow, botrytis, crown and root rots, leaf spots and powdery mildew. Good cultural practices can prevent many of these issues from occurring. These problems can be detected through routine scouting and if necessary, control strategies can be implemented as needed.

HARDY FERNS

FERNS grow best in moist, shady locations with soil high in organic matter. Their varied forms, sizes, and textures add interest to the garden. Our ferns are grown from spores and have not been collected in the wild. They are 1-year old dormant plants with heavy crowns and produce fuller, more lush containers. Some evergreen varieties may be shipped with old foliage, but new fronds will quickly unfurl after transplanting. Dormant varieties will be shipped without foliage. All of our ferns should be transplanted into gallon or larger containers, and should be ready for sale in 4-5 weeks.

Vernalized 72 cell fern liners for quarts and gallons.

Japanese Painted Fern 3" plug shipped dormant.

Japanese Painted Fern 3" plug after 3 weeks at 55°

POTTING SHED

PLANT

Make sure plugs are adequately moist prior to planting. Soil should be well-drained with pH 5.5-6.5. Center crown and plant at soil level. Planting too deep will delay shoot development or cause the crown to rot. Planting too high may dry out the plug and crown from being too exposed to the sun.

GROW

Although most ferns prefer cool temperatures, it is best to grow them slightly warmer at 60-65°F, especially the Athyrium types that do not have visible crowns.

LIGHT LEVELS

Provide 50% shade (below 2500 foot candles) for optimum growth, especially in late spring. Too much light produces light green to yellow foliage. Lower light levels produces more lush and dark green foliage.

WATER

It is important to keep ferns evenly moist and never allow them to dry out. Like Astilbe, allowing them to wilt could be deadly. Water early in the day to prevent botrytis and foliar diseases.

FERTILIZER

Ferns are light feeders, requiring only 75-100 ppm Nitrogen for good growth.

MARKETING HINT

Protect ferns from high winds. Once fronds break, they do not come back.

GRASSES

Schizachyrium The Blues
3" plug shipped to you in a dormant stage

Calamagrostis Karl Foerster
3" plug for 1 or 2 gallon containers

Panicum Shenandoah
72 cell available in spring, summer and fall

GRASSES are an integral component of the perennial landscape because they provide a long-season of interest with summer and fall foliage, fall flowers and dried winter appeal. They are very disease resistant and require little maintenance. Our 3" or 72-cell grass liners are available spring, summer and fall. Plant them year-round for all season. They are one-year old plants, fully rooted, with large crowns ready to explode in spring.

THEPOTTINGSHED

PLANT

Make sure pots are adequately moist prior to planting. Pots that are too dry when potting may struggle to absorb enough moisture to stimulate growth, especially in hot weather. Spread out any spiraled roots for quicker growth.

GROW

Use a well-drained soil that has good water-retention with a pH of 6-6.5. Most grasses grow best in moist soil, but do not tolerate being too wet.

TEMPERATURE

Many grasses require warm temperatures, especially Miscanthus, in order to break dormancy. Grow in a greenhouse at a minimum 60°F. Cool season grasses, such as Calamagrostis, Festuca and Helictotrichon can be grown cooler if so desired. If growing outside or in a cold frame, please delay your order until outside temperatures have warmed accordingly.

LIGHT LEVELS

Grow in full sun, minimum 5,000 foot candles. Too much shade will cause most grasses to stretch and become leggy.

WATER

Keep evenly moist until growth appears. Once established, grasses can be allowed to dry out between watering.

FERTILIZER

Grasses are moderate to heavy feeders. Once actively growing, feed with 100-200 ppm nitrogen for best growth.

EARLY FLOWERING

Most grasses are long day plants and are marketed in spring without flowers. For quicker growth and earlier flowering, provide long days and grow at 68-72°F.

ANDROPOGON

ANDROPOGON (Big Blue Stem) Zones 4-9

HOSTA

HOSTA (Plantain Lily) is a very popular and undemanding perennial. Grown mostly for its decorative foliage, plants remain attractive from spring till frost. Most flower mid-July to early August. Hosta prefer partial shade, although a few will tolerate sun with adequate moisture. Use as a groundcover, for edging or as an accent plant in the shade border. Zones 3-9.

PROPER PLANTING DEPTH Hosta

POTTING SHED

GROW

Use well-drained soil with a pH 6.0-6.5. Center and plant so crown is 1" below soil surface, leaving developing eyes at or just below the soil surface. Spread roots evenly throughout the soil for faster growth.

TEMPERATURES

Grow at 50°F minimum to stimulate growth. If growing outside in early spring, do not allow pots to freeze.

WATER

Allow pots to dry slightly between watering, especially until growth appears.

FERTILIZER

Hostas are light to moderate feeders. It is best to incorporate a slow release fertilizer in the soil prior to transplanting. If topdressing is desired, apply to the top of the soil after potting. If foliage is present, careful application must not allow fertilizer to become trapped in the leaf petioles, otherwise, some leaf burning may occur.

SHADE

Although some varieties are sun tolerant, provide 30% shade for best growth and quality.

IRIS GERMANICA (Tall Bearded) Zones 3-9

Tall Bearded Iris range in height from 29" to 48". There are hundreds of varieties in this category and they are the most common type found in gardens. Plants prefer slightly alkaline soil. Plugs should be planted so the tops of the rhizomes are exposed. Planting too deep may cause rhizomes to rot. Very drought tolerant. These plugs have multiple eyes and will finish gallons quickly.

POTTING SHED

SOIL

Use a well-drained, slightly acidic soil with a pH 5.8- 6.5. Soil should not contain superphosphate or perlite.

PLANTING DEPTH

Plant bulbs near the bottom of the container, leaving 1" of soil below the bulb and 3-4" of soil above the bulb with the bulbs in the center of the pot tilted towards the outside. This way the pot can help guide the sprouts to be perfectly positioned on the outside of the pot. Lilies develop stem roots at the nodes below the soil. These roots are the primary feeder roots for the plant. If these roots fail to develop properly, uneven or stunted growth will result.

BULB POSITION

Plant bulb so tip is facing upward. When planting multiple bulbs per pot, space bulbs evenly apart and position bulb tips upward or slightly outward. Take care when filling pots to ensure bulbs do not tip over.

WATER

Keep pots evenly moist but not too wet to ensure proper stem root development. Never allow pots to dry out. Once shoots are 2-3" and stem roots have developed, more frequent watering may be required, otherwise uneven growth may occur.

FERTILIZER

Lilies are light feeders and do not require any fertilization until shoots are 2-3 in. tall. Feed with 100-150 ppm Nitrogen as needed or use controlled release fertilizers.

TEMPERATURE

Grow asiatics at 50-55°F night and 65-75°F days. Grow orientals warmer at 55-60°F night and 70-75°F days. For best quality, grow pots at 48°F for the first 10 days to ensure proper stem root development. For summer production, protect pots from direct sun and overheating for the initial 10 days.

The premier line of pot lilies. All these varieties are genetically short, can be grown all year round, and are available in a wide range of colors. In particular, these varieties have been selected for their higher bud count, their reduced sensitivity to leaf scorching and bud abortion, and their shorter forcing periods. These characteristics make Lily Looks™ the ideal pot lily, especially for scheduling multiple crops in spring and throughout the year.

PAEONIA

PAEONIA (Peony) is a classic perennial with unsurpassed late spring beauty. Peonies are very long-lived and develop large crowns with thick woody roots. Huge fragrant flowers bloom late spring for a spectacular show. Excellent cut flower. Zones 3-8.

PROPER PLANTING DEPTH

Garden Peonies

POTTING SHED

GROW

Use well-drained soil with a pH 6.5-7.0. Center crown with eyes facing up and angle root at 45° towards the bottom edge of the pot.

PLANTING DEPTH

Planting depth is critical for proper growth and flowering. Plant so eyes are 1 1/2-2" below the soil surface. If too shallow, the crown and eyes may dry out when exposed to intense spring sun. Prune root tips if necessary to obtain proper planting depth.

TEMPERATURE

Grow cool at 45-55°F until new fibrous roots are visible. Growing too warm too quickly will result in plants developing without a root structure to support it. This may cause plants to wilt or leaves to curl during high spring temperatures.

WATER

Allow pots to dry slightly between watering. Good drainage is a must.

FERTILIZER

Peonies are light feeders and too much Nitrogen may inhibit flowering. Fertilize with 100-150ppm Nitrogen every other watering.

DISEASE

Botrytis is the primary culprit of buds not opening and turning black. Keep foliage dry during watering, especially during cool weather. Use fungicides to control outbreaks.

PAEONIA

PAEONIA (Garden Peony) Zones 3-8

Garden Peonies are long-lived perennials that produce huge, fragrant springtime flowers. There are 5 main categories of flower type: single, anemone, semi-double, double and bomb double. For Garden Peonies, prune foliage back in late fall after the leaves have turned brown to prevent Peony wilt.

PHLOX

PHLOX (Garden Phlox) is another classic and popular perennial with many new flower colors. Phlox have an exceptionally long bloom time and provide much needed color in the garden mid to late summer. Plant in full sun in areas with good air circulation to prevent mildew.

Growing Colors™ 1 gallon Garden Phlox at retail, grown from a 3" plug.

Phlox in a 3" plug

Phlox Flame White 1 gallon from a 3" plug

POTTING SHED

GROW

Use well-drained soil with a pH 6.0-6.5. Center plugs and plant at or just below soil surface. Planting too shallow may cause plugs to dry. Too deep may prevent proper eye development.

TEMPERATURE

Grow warm at 60-68°F to stimulate root and shoot growth.

WATER

Allow pots to dry slightly between watering. Water early in the day and keep foliage dry at all times to prevent diseases.

FERTILIZER

Phlox are moderate feeders. Fertilize with 150-200 ppm Nitrogen as needed.

DISEASE

Phlox are particularly susceptible to powdery mildew. Inspect crops regularly for small white spots on the foliage and use preventive fungicides. Provide good air circulation, maintain low humidity, and keep foliage dry. Alternaria is another fungal disease and often results in the lower leaves drying up and turning brown. Provide good air circulation and increase light levels to the lower foliage by increasing pot spacing. Preventive sprays are also effective.

PINCH

Pinching stems after 4-6 leaf pairs will promote lateral branching and produce fuller pots with more flowers.

PHLOX

PHLOX–EARLY START™ SERIES (Garden Phlox) Zones 4-8

This early blooming hybrid series will produce an array of vivid flowers for many weeks in summer. THEPOTTINGSHED

SOIL

Use well-drained, but moist soil with a pH 5.8-6.4. Center plugs and plant at or 1" below soil surface.

TEMPERATURE

Grow warm at 65-70°F to stimulate growth.

WATER

While growing, allow pots to dry slightly between watering. As plants mature, they wilt rather easily and require more frequent watering than most perennials. Water early in the day and keep foliage dry to prevent diseases.

FERTILIZER

Rudbeckia are moderate feeders. Use controlled release fertilizers as a topdress or apply a liquid feed of 200-300 ppm Nitrogen as needed.

FLOWERING

Rudbeckia require long days (14 hours light) and a minimum of 10 leaves to flower. For earlier flowering, provide night interruption lighting for a total of 14 hours light after 10 leaves are present. Grow at 70-75°F.

PINCH

Pinching stems after 4-6 leaf pairs will promote lateral branching and produce fuller pots with more flowers.

VERNALIZATION

Rudbeckia are cold beneficial plants, i.e. they do not need a cold treatment to flower, but benefit from receiving one. Our spring crop of Rudbeckia are fully vernalized (cold treatment). Plugs have been grown since last summer and with the onset of colder weather, are allowed to go dormant and be vernalized. This process produces the largest crowns with greater eye development, and results in faster flowering, more even flowering and greater flower production.

TEMPERATURE

Grow warm at 60-68°F for best growth.

WATER

Sedums are succulents and prefer to be grown on the dry side. Water thoroughly but allow pots to dry between watering. Growing drier will also produce more compact plants.

FERTILIZER

Sedums are light to moderate feeders. Use a controlled release fertilizer at 150-200 ppm Nitrogen as needed.

Example of our West Coast grown bare root Sedums.

EDIBLES

EDIBLES

Edible perennial crops require little maintenance once established and will bring years of fruit and vegetable harvesting for you to enjoy. Growing your own food is not only fun but you benefit by having the produce available at the peak of its freshness and you know exactly where it came from. Both of these reasons are why many people like to have a fruit and vegetable garden which seems to increase in popularity every year.

Lingonberry

POTTING SHED

LIGHT

Edible plants require full sun. Make sure they receive at least 6 hours of sun or more every day.

SOIL AND FERTILIZER

Make sure the soil is well drained and rich in organic matter with a slightly acidic pH (6.0-7.0). You should only use organic types of fertilizers when growing edible plants like compost, manure or bone meal.

WATER

Thorough, infrequent watering is preferred with edible plants instead of shallow frequent watering. When you water too much, the root system becomes water logged and doesn't develop as vigorously. Plus there is the risk of exposing the plants to root diseases.
