I'm Sue and I have been an educator for just under 10 years. My work history includes employment in a variety of early childhood education settings, and work with children and young adults with special needs.

I feel that home-based childcare is such a wonderful place for babies, toddlers and young children to learn and flourish and grow. I have cared for babies at my place from the age of five months and have had children stay with me right up to starting school. Watching friendships develop across a range of ages in a small group setting is always really special!

Te Whariki and a mix of early childhood philosophies influence my practice. By enabling children to grow in confidence, form relationships and through play, extend and develop their skills.

The aspirations of parents and whanau for their child, and the current interests of each child are the basis from which I plan and provide interesting, challenging, meaningful and fun experiences for each child in my care. Please give me a call on 020 4081 0601
