He is an anthropomorphic squirrel who wears wetsuits and lives underwater. Sandy was voiced by Carolyn Lawrence and first appeared in an episode of Tea at the Treedome that premiered on May 1, 1999. Sandy was created and designed by marine biologist and animator Stephen Hillenburg, creator of the show. The role in SpongeBob SquarePants Sandy is a close friend of SpongeBob SquarePants. He is a proud Texan and speaks in stereotypical southern sweepstakes. To live underwater, Sandy lived in a bubble-like dome[2] and wore atmospheric wetsuits while outside her home. [3] Instead, as revealed in Tea at the Treedome, other characters must wear water helmets with opposite functionality when visiting their homes. Sandy has extraordinary scientific skills such as the ability to build complex discoveries. [4] Sandy proved to have a number of formidable character traits and interests and tomboys; he is skilled in karate, is involved in bodybuilding,[5] and is a rodeo champion. [6] She is also a close friend of Patrick Star, SpongeBob's best friend and neighbor, although she is sometimes annoyed by him. Sandy Cheeks Voice Development Voice provided by Carolyn Lawrence. Lawrence was given the role of Sandy while she was in Los Angeles in Los Feliz. He met Donna Grillo, a casting director, on the sidewalk. Lawrence was with a friend who knew Grillo, and he said Lawrence had an interesting voice. Grillo took Lawrence to the audition and he got the part. [9] [10] Before the recording, Lawrence when the crew sent a storyboard. She explained, I really like it! Not only can I read the script, I can actually see what the artists have in mind. It's an amazing process and I feel so lucky to be working like that! [...] I'd rather let the script come alive in me before before Reference ^ Walker, Sam (July 11, 2018).
