

Seaweed Farming between Nusa Lembongan and Nusa Ceningan, where Clinton and I spent the end of the year 2023.

Clinton & Anne-Chloé's News January 2024

Dear Edgeworkers, Riftwalkers, Researchers, Explorers, Possibilitators, Mediators, Coaches, and Agents of Transformation,

If I was starting a tradition of giving each year a power distinction, I would call 2024: The Year of Gameworlds.

From what it looks like over here, more and more Edgeworkers are taking the risk to reveal their Nonmaterial Value to the world through WorkTalks, Workshops, trainings, year-long programs, articles, videos and websites. This is a celebration!

Unfortunately, too often the context in which this Nonmaterial Value is delivered is contaminated with the old thoughtware of 'A Profit-Making Business', for example:

- Your personal worth depends on how much money you are 'making'.
- You have worked hard or spent a lot of money gaining skills, distinctions and processes, so your clients will have to pay that much to also get it from you.
- You protect everything that you are learning - through copyright and paid subscribers for 'exclusive' content - for fear of being left with nothing else to offer.
- You equate yourself with the work (trying to make your name bigger than the name of your context) thinking that 'going viral' will make you eternal.
- You try to convince people that what you offer is scarce, using the secret threat that when you die, no one will be able to access the work you were delivering. So they better get it now.
- You do not train apprentices to powerfully become better than you are, so that you can replace yourself.
- You Instagram-yourself, projecting a fictitious persona so as to attract potential clients to a contrived ghost-image of yourself.
- Or on the opposite side of the spectrum, you behave as an 'employee' of the gameworld, limiting your research to domains that are 'allowed' by the projected 'authority'. You sign agreements to kick-back 10% of your earnings to your 'teachers', and you wait for 'them' to tell you what to do next.

- You assume (even unconsciously) that someone else will Steward the Clarity, Integrity, and Development of the context that you deliver. You 'do your thing' assuming that 'someone else' will care for the well-being and evolution of the gameworld.

There is a world of difference between:

- Holding Space for your own personal healing, transformational, and initiatory work on a regular basis (while staying in the default context of 'Business')

AND

- Building out your 'Growthness' Gameworld providing the Evolutionary work in your area of Archiarchy.

The shift is to become a 'Growthness Gameworld Builder', instead of a 'Business Owner' (or an 'Employee').

Considering yourself a 'Growthness Gameworld Builder' might be the start of a new identity for you. The identity of someone:

- Who builds energetic and memetic structures that will last longer than you will, that can expand beyond what you can source, and that can offer Nonmaterial Values that you cannot yet imagine.
- Who builds a Village in which Archan Values and Processes are exchanged and offered among people in the gameworld and beyond, for which you are not the main spaceholder.

The Possibility of building out a Growthness Gameworld could easily be scary beyond your current ability to endure. What happens if you build a Growthness gameworld and it flies? What if people rejoice playing in your new gameworld, and they heal and become more human, more adult, more present, and they want to express their deep gratitude to you? What happens if the new Growthness gameworld undermines at a deep level any other gameworld that you are participating in which does not create such results? What will you do about still participating in those other gameworlds?

When you start building a new Growthness Gameworld that works, there is no going back to being 'snapped into' the story of powerlessness in the face of the existing systems. Suddenly the most satisfying gameworld is the one that you created. Then what?

I offer the Possibility of considering that you are a Growthness Gameworld Builder, in addition to being a healer, an initiator, a spaceholder, a coach.

What happens if you say out loud, "I Take A Stand for causing the Growthness gameworld of _____ to thrive."?
(HINT: There is only one way to find out...)

What Emotional Fears come up for you while taking such a Stand?
(HINT: Write each Emotional Fear clearly in the back of your Beep! Book as a precious doorway to an Emotional Healing Process).

What Voices do you hear shouting at you from the back of your head?
(HINT: What happens if you pull out your Voice Blaster and blast the voices to dust immediately?)

What Standard Human Intelligence Thoughtware do you carry that is becoming a burden?
(HINT: Create a special 3Cell to empower each other to make and practice one of the 50 Thoughtware Upgrades each week for a year and see how much your world changes.)

'Business' thoughtware is rooted in a culture that does not recognize:
• That all the cool stuff you are discovering does NOT come from you, but comes from The Source. (It is hilarious that some humans

- think they can 'copyright' the Source.)
- That Unleashing the Group Intelligence of your Team is your biggest resource for building out your part of Archiarchy.
 - That Replacing Yourself frees you of neurotic obsessions to the degree that E.C.C.O. (Earth Coincidence Control Center) can move you to where the services of your Archetypal Lineage are needed next.
 - That Modern Culture itself knows nothing about Gameworlds.

Whoa! Is there room for High Level Fun Full Out Gameworld Adventures this year, or what?

Love and Hoots of Joy from,

Some Cool Stuff

Gaian Road Team Interview: Hugh Wilson

The Gaian Road Team (2023 edition) strolled through damp New Zealand gorse and forest to knock unannounced on Hugh Wilson's wilderness cabin door on the Hinewai Reserve. He answered with a smile and started talking as soon as we turned on the voice recorder. We were unprepared for a video recording, but Hugh's story is so rich we are happy to share it.

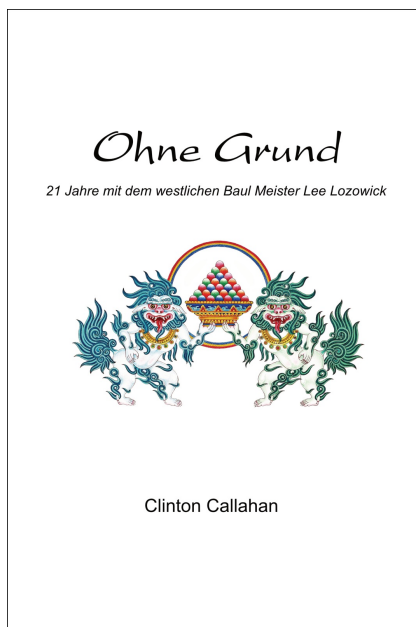

For those who might not know Hugh Wilson, he was featured in the documentary 'Fools & Dreamers' that you can watch here: <https://happenfilms.com/fools-and-dreamers>

Hugh's kiwi accent can be quite hard to understand, so we added subtitles (thank you Teammates Sophia Wegele and Ewa Wichmann for that work). Simply turn them on, on YouTube.

Women of Earth Lab - Brazil Women sourcing Archiarchy

The dates are 16-20 March 2024.
The place is São Paulo, Brazil.
The Trainers are Vera Franco and Anne-Chloé Destremau.

Women! It is time for us to start over.
We start over in a different cultural context. Our new beginning originates in consciousness, radical-responsibility, and interdependence. Our new beginning is born from our reclaimed Dignity and Arrogance. When Women respect their Feelings, their Bodies, their Voice enough, what emerges is a stand for a regenerative culture on Planet Earth.

More info and registration are here.
