With this introduction aside, here's a table of content that will help you go to this page and find what you're looking for. If you're like most people on this planet, you probably don't have an impact on Language. You can't even say hello or thank you in Portuguese. If that sounds like your situation right now, then you'll want to get started by studying some basic basic At this stage of the game you should not be too concerned about speaking Portuguese with perfect pronunciation. While pronunciation is important to work later, at the beginning at least you should just get used to the idea of speaking a foreign language. Start with some basic phrases and say them out loud. You may get confused or judgmental about how you sound, which is perfectly normal. It becomes easier to speak Portuguese, the more practice you get with it. Now you're not talking for other people, you're talking about yourself. To start I would like to use the list on Omniglot to learn the basic phrases. Learn to speak Portuguese, building your confidence in one word at a time. We will break up this section into sections, free courses that you can use to learn Portuguese online, as well as paid courses. Learn Brazilian Portuguese Online for free There are a number of free courses that you can use to learn Brazilian Portuguese. Here are my best recommendations: Duolingo - Duolingo is a language learning app that can be used on your desktop or mobile phone. It is very good for learning vocabulary and learning pronunciation on the go. Combined with speaking with Brazilians or classes with a teacher, this works very well. Paid courses to teach Brazilian Portuguese Internet there are only two courses that I feel confident telling people what they should buy. I'm not saying that other courses aren't good, but I just think most of them don't offer anything unique that you can't get in a free course. The two courses below are different. The mimic flow method of Portuguese Idahoos Ness - This course is entirely focused on teaching you how to sound like a Brazilian. This unique approach has you retraining your mouth to move in the way Brazilians move when they speak Portuguese. I used this methodology to improve my accent and sound more Brazilian. Keep in mind that the Portuguese stream has a high dropout rate for the simple reason that it is hard work. But if you are willing to put in the work you will speak Portuguese with a better accent than 99.99% of foreigners. You can read more about the review here. Semantics Portuguese - Semantica offers several different video series that teach Portuguese through engaging stories. There are different series for different levels. You can use Semantica to go from beginner to advanced speaker. Each episode teaches a specific aspect of language, grammar, pronunciation, vocabulary, slang and culture. I think semantics-Portuguese is the best Portuguese course on the market and I can only be a little biased because I co-host the second season. Read more here. Portuguese Acceleration Blueprint - This one Kevin, who runs the site LiveinBrazil.org. you have to like his teaching style to get value value this course. Check out his free video series and if you like his approach go for it. Otherwise you may prefer to stick with Semantica or one of the free options. How to talk to Brazilians online for free is the best thing you can do not only for your Portuguese, but also to improve the quality of your experience in Brazil to connect with Brazilians. The more Brazilian friends that you have, the more enthusiasm you will be about learning Brazilian Portuguese. Your enthusiasm in learning will extend to your Brazilian friends and they want to help you learn even more. This is the fastest way to find out. There are a number of websites on the internet that have been created for language learners to connect with other language learners. There are many different options out there, so take your pick or subscribe to all of them. Whatever your approach, I encourage you to get on Skype with the Brazilian in the next 7 days and say something, say something, even if it's just oh, tudo bem? You'll thank me later. HelloTalk - My number one recommendation right now is to search for Brazilian language exchange partners. This is a free app that you can download on your phone, making it very easy to connect with Brazilians who want to help you learn Portuguese. They have many integrated features that make it easy to use, even if you don't speak Portuguese at all. Very recommended. Livemocha - Livemocha was once my top recommendation for finding language partners, but over the years their model has changed quite a bit and they have been purchased by Rosetta Stone, a product I don't have big things to say about. Busuu - Busuu is another site that connects you with language learners. They also have a bunch of free resources to learn different languages. Italki - Like Livemocha in that it connects you with other language learners, but what makes Italki different is that you can be paid to teach your language. This is a good place for budget language learners to find a Portuguese teacher. Where to find online Brazilian Portuguese teachers Once you are ready to take your Portuguese learning to the next level you want to enlist the help of a professional. Classes with a professional teacher will help you make faster progress in the language. I have a few recommendations where you should find an online Portuguese teacher. Street Smart - Street Smart Brazil is a market leader in online Portuguese language lessons. They have been on this for years and have helped hundreds of students become successful Portuguese students. This experience comes at a premium, although you will have to make a serious investment in your classes. Well worth every penny for the quality of their teaching and that they will help you get. Semantics-Portuguese - Semantics is known more for their online video tutorials than for their Portuguese teachers, but they offer online classes to their clients. If you use Semantica to learn Portuguese on your own (which every serious learner should be) and you are looking for an online teacher, taking classes with a semantics teacher will help you reinforce what you have learned by watching their videos. iTalki - Italki is not only the place to find free language learning partners, but it's also a great place to find teachers as well. They allow two types of teachers to offer their services on their platform, community teachers and professionals. Professional teachers have some certification and more experience, and anyone can be a community teacher. I recommend interviewing a bunch of teachers at Italki to make sure your personality matches well before committing to a class package. Verbling - Verbling used to be a free site that connects language learners, chat roulette style. They have changed their model since then and now they are a platform for finding online teachers. Prices and levels of experience will vary, just like Italki. The Brazilian Gringo Portuguese video series I have produced a series of videos to address the cultural aspects of language learning, motivation and the common mistakes that foreigners make when speaking Portuguese. I have a lot of fun making these videos, and most of the videos I make come from requests from blog readers. If you want to see me make a video, ask me a question via email or leaving a comment and I'll probably make one for you. Podcasts to learn Brazilian Portuguese Podcasts are a great learning tool because you can use them to learn Portuguese at times when you might not otherwise be doing anything. It's great to listen while you're in line at a supermarket in Brazil, or while traveling to work in the US. For advanced learners, as it is all in Portuguese.
