0 Account Management Card Claims Management Gautrain Workers associated with the National Union of Metalworkers SA (Numsa) will go on strike from Monday. Numsa spokesman Phakamile Hlubi-Majola said their members will go on strike until Bombela Operating Company (BOC) deals them significantly on their demands. The BOC refuses to negotiate wages with us, they simply impose a 4% increase on our members without attracting or negotiating with them. We demand an 8% increase to soften the lowest paid worker, who earns about 8,500 rubles a month, she said. In a statement, Gautrain said it offered Numsa a 4.1% pay increase, which the union refused to accept. The company said demand from Numsa equates to an increase of about 26%. Numsa members will picket on Monday outside gautrain's office in Midrand between 8am and 11am. Gautrain told passengers it would implement a contingency plan to ensure it continues to provide services. Gautrain said buses and midi buses would not be affected by the strike and would operate as standard schedule. On trains, Gautrain said during the morning and afternoon rush hours, there will be trains every 30 minutes. We have also put additional security measures into the Gautrain system to ensure your safety is not compromised, Gautrain said. To get to the Gautrain train or bus, each passenger must have a Gautrain card with a minimum R30 loaded on it. Alternatively, you can use your contactless bank card to travel on the Gautrain, bus and parking included. Rail users use discounted fares on the Gautrain bus and parking. To qualify, passengers must: tag the Gautrain bus within 1 hour of leaving the station; or tag to the station within 1 hour of tagging on the Gautrain bus; or get out of the parking lot within 1 hour by train. Non-rail users will be charged for standard parking rates. Paying as you go is perfect for casual travel.
