The novel Robinson Crusoe tells the story of a young and impulsive Englishman that contradicts his parents' wishes and takes to the seas beginning the adventure. Young Robinson Crusoe was shipwrecked and castaway on a remote tropical island 28 years ago. The story may be based on the real events of Alexander Selkirk, the Scottish castaway who survived on the island for four years, or Henry/Robinson, a political writer seeking comfort and guidance. The classic tale of adventure became a model for the modern novel. The book is considered a spiritual autobiography as Crusoe's religious and theological and moral aspects. The book is considered a spiritual autobiography as Crusoe's reflection on religion, seeking comfort and guidance. He gets a Bible from a boat that's been washed ashore on the coast and starts reading it. He leaves to the beach to talk to his parrot, but there's no human connection. He turns to God in times of doubt. Crusoe's views on religion change from the beginning of the story and the end. At the beginning of the book, Crusoe sails in the opposite direction of the Spanish Main, in search of a better life. He returns to the ship, but the captain is dead. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to stay on the island, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was shipwrecked, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself. The island of Crusoe was salvaged, while Selkirk decided to leave his ship, so he hides himself.